MBTA Addressing Issues At Wollaston Red Line Station

By SCOTT JACKSON

The MBTA has been making improvements at the recently renovated Wollaston station to address riders' concerns about the facility and will not close out the contract for the project until those items are addressed.

Wollaston station reopened in August after the MBTA closed the facility for 20 months following a $36 million renovation project, including the addition of elevators to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act. Wollaston was the last Red Line station to be brought into compliance with the 1990 law.

Following its reopening, riders had expressed concern about flooding and slippery floors in the station's lobby. Sen. John Keenan, in a recent interview, said the MBTA has been working to allay those concerns. The transit agency put down rugs as an intermediate step and then buffed the floors to make them less slippery.

"I personally observed that the floor was very slippery, and we reached out immediately to our contacts at the MBTA. In the meantime, they were also hearing

COVID-19 Recovery Coach Initiative

The City of Quincy, in collaboration with Bay State Community Services (BSCS) is offering a new recovery coach initiative in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Under this new initiative, Quincy residents experiencing substance use disorder (SUD) as well as their friends and family, will have access to a certified recovery coach 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"The City recognizes the unique challenges faced by those impacted by substance use disorder during this time due to the sudden unavailability of many of their traditional recovery resources and supports throughout the city and beyond," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "A trained recovery coach will be available to provide individualized phone support to those in need."

Support will include one on one peer support, treatment referrals to the appropriate level of care, medication assisted treatment referrals, medical care referrals, linkage to housing support and other resources and connection to virtual 12 step meetings and other recovery support groups.

To connect with a recovery coach, call 1-617-479-3700.

For more information contact Laura Martin, City of Quincy's Substance Use Prevention Coordinator, at lmartin@quincyma.gov.

May 18 New Target Date For Businesses Reopening

By SCOTT JACKSON

Gov. Charlie Baker on Tuesday said non-essential businesses would remain closed for another two weeks until May 18 amid the COVID-19 pandemic and announced the formation of a task force to determine how businesses can re-open in a phased manner going forward.

Baker also said the state's stay-at-home advisory to residents and a ban on gatherings of more than ten people would remain in place until that date. All three orders had been set to

More Test Kits For Health Centers

By SCOTT JACKSON

Community health centers in Quincy and six other Bay State cities were set to receive additional kits to test for COVID-19.

Gov. Charlie Baker on April 22 announced his administration was partnering with Quest Diagnostics and the Mass League of Community Health Center to increase testing through community health centers.

Community health centers in areas of high need that have the ability to increase their testing capacities will be prioritized, according to the governor's office.

Between April 17 and April 22, Quest sent more than 2,255 test kits to community health centers in Boston and Brockton. The company planned to ship more than 5,000 test kits to a dozen community health centers in Boston, Brockton, Lowell, Quincy, Fall River, Provincetown and Worcester within two days of the governor's announcement.

Lawn And Garden Spring Safety Tips

Practical Fitness With Wayne L. Westcott

By WAYNE WESTCOTT

For those of us who are lawn and garden enthusiasts, this is a very special time of year. We are anxious to enjoy a new season of yard work, and we can't wait to start raking, trimming, hoeing, and sowing.

Unfortunately, many people unknowingly use improper biomechanics (positions, movements, and techniques) when performing typical lawn and garden tasks. These unintentional mistakes may lead to a variety of injuries, particularly in the shoulder and low back areas.

To improve your biomechanical proficiency, consider the following performance guidelines for lawn raking, hedge trimming, garden hoeing, and seed planting. It may take some practice to perfect these techniques, but the result should be a reduced risk of injuries, as well as more productive yard and garden work sessions.

Raking

Lawn raking is a vigorous physical activity that requires coordinated movements of the upper and lower body. Although the actual rake pulling action is accomplished by the arm and upper back muscles, the hard working shoulder muscles and the body stabilizing lower back muscles are most likely to be injured if raking is performed improperly.

Step one for successful raking is a good base of support with a staggered foot stance that adjusts easily to small backward steps. I recommend wearing running/athletic shoes for ease of movement and motion control when raking.

Step two is to maintain a relatively erect posture, neither bending forward at the waist nor leaning backward, as both of these body positions place greater stress on the lower back. Remind yourself to stand tall throughout your raking session.

Step three is related to arm movements, which should remain reasonably close to your body at all times. Reaching too far forward may place excessive stress on the low back muscles, and pulling too far backward may place too much stress on the shoulder muscles. Keep your arms slightly flexed while raking. If your elbows are extended you are most likely overreaching and raising your risk of injury.

Step four is to frequently change sides and hand positions throughout the raking session. Although you will have a preferred raking pattern, try to switch sides at least every 10 pulling actions. Changing hand positions periodically postpones fatigue, particularly in the more vulnerable shoulder muscles, which reduces the risk of overuse issues.

Step five is to stop raking every 10 minutes to pick up the rakings. This provides a beneficial break in the repetitive raking actions, and prevents the pile of raked materials from becoming too large and unwieldy.

Hedge and Bush Trimming

Whether you use manual or electrical trimmers, this can be a most problematic physical activity, especially for the neck, shoulder, and low back muscles. Unless you have low shrubs, the best advice I can give you is to use a sturdy stepladder when working on bushes above waist level.

Step one applies whether your feet are on the ground or on the ladder steps. Always maintain a balanced base of support, and keep your body directly above your feet. Resist leaning forward at the waist, even if it requires moving the stepladder more frequently, as this posture decreases stability and significantly increases low back stress.

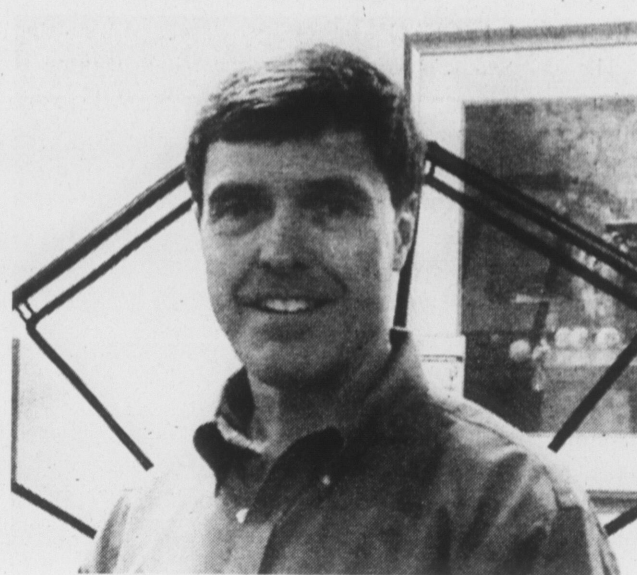

Step two is to never raise the clippers higher than your abdominal area. Raising your arms above this level requires straightening the elbows and holding the clippers too far from your body. This unfavorable leverage position makes the muscles of your neck, shoulders, and low back work much harder, thereby increasing the risk of both acute and overuse injuries.

Step three is simply to take a break every 10 minutes. Even with your elbows bent and your upper arms close to your sides, holding a trimmer for extended periods of time can cause a variety of physical problems, including issues in the gripping muscles of your forearms. Use the break time to pick up the clippings, thereby incorporating different muscles and movements before returning to the somewhat static posture used when trimming.

Garden Hoeing

Hoeing spring soil can be a muscle-challenging activity that is even more vigorous than lawn-raking. Pulling a garden hoe through the ground is definitely harder than pulling a lawn rake over the ground. Like raking, the feet should provide a relatively wide and stable base from which to perform the arm pulling movements. Like raking, avoid bending forward or leaning backward as both positions raise the potential for low back injuries. Short-range arm actions are more effective and less stressful on the shoulder joints than overreaching movements that pull the body out of proper position and create unfavorable leverage factors. Like raking, switch sides and arm positions every 10 pulls, and take a brief hoeing break every 5 to 10 minutes. I suggest shallow (rather than deep) hoeing actions, even though more time may be needed to complete your work. That is, instead of hoeing a deep row in one hard pass, do two passes with moderate effort to achieve the same row depth with less musculoskeletal stress.

Seed Sowing

My least favorite garden task is planting the seeds, because it is a pretty tedious process. However, the apparent lack of activity as you place seeds one inch apart in the dirt can be deceiving. Some people bend over at the waist to plant, while others bend at the knees in a squat position. Both positions are potentially dangerous, as the first places undue stress on the low back and the second places excessive stress on the knees. My recommended planting position is to place one foot flat on the ground and to place the opposite knee on the ground (preferably on a pad). This position permits a relatively straight back and a 90-degree knee angle which provides both a more comfortable and less stressful planting position. Switch leg positions every few feet as you move down the row.

By doing some preparatory muscular conditioning and implementing biomechanically correct activity techniques, you should have safe, effective and enjoyable raking, trimming, hoeing and sowing experiences this season.

Quincy College Summer Tuition Vouchers, Remote Student Support

Quincy College announces a new Summer Tuition Voucher program for new, transfer, and current students who reside in the host cities of Quincy and Plymouth, MA.

Residents of Quincy and Plymouth will receive a one-time summer tuition discount of $300. All other new, transfer, and current students from areas outside Quincy and Plymouth will receive a one-time summer tuition discount of $150. Proof of Residency Required. Limit of one summer tuition voucher per student and some restrictions apply.

"Quincy College has always been a beacon of opportunity for Quincy residents, and this valuable new program will open that opportunity to even more members of our community at a time when the additional assistance is very much needed. I'm very grateful for the work of Interim President Asquino, Assistant Vice President Tina Cahill and the entire College team in spearheading this initiative," said Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch.

Registration is now open for Summer and Fall Semester courses at Quincy College. Summer One courses run May 27 to Aug. 9. And there are two short-term Summer Two sessions, with courses running June 30 to Aug. 3 and July 7 to Aug. 24. The Summer Tuition Voucher will be automatically applied to a student's account upon Summer 2020 class registration.

Discounted Rates for High School Students
Quincy College provides high school students with the opportunity to earn college credit from Quincy College, while they are still in high school. Area high school students can concurrently enroll this summer in a 3-credit course at a discounted high school tuition rate of $263 per course. Fees are still applicable, and some restrictions apply.

The Quincy College high school discounted rate equates to a savings of $455 per course this summer. Students can save time and money while building their higher education credentials.

Remote Teaching & Learning

Quincy College, like all higher education institutions this spring, had to quickly adapt their curriculum from on-campus, in-class instruction to remote teaching and learning. On-Campus student services, like Tutoring, Advising, Student Development, Student Life, and other student facing services had to pivot just as quickly when the college decided to transition to a fully remote experience.

Quincy College serves nearly 4,000 students across their Plymouth and Quincy Campuses with a non-traditional student population across Massachusetts, with a student population with varying socio-economic needs.

"In addition to fully translating our Spring 2020 Coursework to remote learning, Quincy College Administration had to look at our students holistically, and explore the impact of a global pandemic outside of the classroom," said Quincy College President, Dr. Daniel Asquino. "We quickly looked at solutions and resources for students facing food insecurity, equal access to technology that would support remote education, and financial burdens.

All of our students are impacted by the pandemic. Our student population consists of parents, caregivers, first generation students, veterans, international students, health care professionals, adult learners, essential workers and others. We consider it our mission

MA Senate Working On Transportation, Housing Bills

By SCOTT JACKSON

The state Senate is working on its own transportation bill and also considering legislation related to housing, Sen. John Keenan said, adding that both are important to ensure people want to work in the Boston area and companies continue to do business in the region.

Keenan spoke to The Sun about the transportation and housing bills in March. In a phone interview April 17, Keenan said those items have been placed on the backburner amid the coronavirus pandemic, though he noted the Legislature was working to pass a bill providing homeowners and renters protections against foreclosures and evictions, respectively, in light of the pandemic. That bill was signed into law last week.

In the March interview, Keenan said the Senate was working on a transportation bill after the House passed its own bill earlier that month.

"The Senate is working on its own plan. Everything is on the table. Nothing is on the table. It's still a work in progress," he said at the time. "We don't know if the Senate proposal will contain a gas tax, whether it will contain the minimum corporate tax that the House put in place. We just don't."

Keenan described the Senate's approach as "policy driven and not revenue driven."

"The policy comes first and then there will be a discussion about ways to fund the policy decisions," he said.

The state House of Representatives on March 4 approved its own transportation bill that could raise a half billion dollars or more for transportation initiatives. The money would go towards the MBTA, regional transit authorities, and road maintenance.

The House legislation would raise the state's gas and diesel tax, currently 24 cents per gallon, by 5 and 9 cents, respectively. It also included changes to the corporate excise tax, increases fees for transportation network companies like Lyft and Uber, and requires rental car companies to pay the sales tax when purchasing vehicles.

Lawmakers on Beacon Hill recognize the state needs to invest in transportation across the board, Keenan added.

"I think everyone is in agreement that we need a major investment in our transportation networks. That includes roads, bridges, es, tunnels, water transportation, public transportation — meaning MBTA, commuter rail and regional transit authorities. We just

Online Program: Brexit And The Implications For Ireland

Learn about Brexit and implications for Ireland with Sean Murphy, a teacher of Irish history, music and dance. The Thomas Crane Public Library online program will be held Tuesday, May 5 at 7 p.m. on Zoom.

Murphy was born and raised in Dublin and moved to Massachusetts in 2005.

If the United Kingdom leaves the European Union in a "no-deal" Brexit, there could be custom posts erected along the border in Ireland - a "hard border." These posts would very likely be attacked and conflict may escalate, militarizing the customs infrastructure and likely hastening the return of the British army or some surrogate force to the area.

Join in for a look at Brexit and its implications for Irish unity and the future of Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland.

To join the program, download and log in to the Zoom app and enter 726-312-380 as the meeting ID.

This online program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Nursing Student Emma Bothwell Has Hands Blessed At Ceremony

Saint Anselm College sophomore nursing student Emma Bothwell of Quincy joined fellow student nurses in the Abbey Church for a blessing before beginning clinical placements.

The Blessing of the Hands Ceremony held on Jan. 24th is a college tradition that symbolically and literally pays honor to the hands of nursing students.

Bothwell, along with 96

other future nurses representing 8 states received the blessing of hands, marking the beginning of their clinical rotations through Saint Anselm College's nursing program.

To be eligible for this honor, a student must be in good academic standing and have completed three semesters of a liberal arts nursing curriculum.

Two-Thirds Of America's Teens Concerned About The Financial Impact Of COVID-19

The financial impact and pressure brought by COVID-19 is weighing heavily on American teenagers, with more than two-thirds of teens (69%) saying they are either somewhat or very concerned about the impact of the pandemic on their families and day-to-day lives, according to a new survey by Junior Achievement USA (JA) and Citizens Bank.

The survey of 1,000 U.S. teens, aged between 13 and 18 and not currently attending college, found that nearly three quarters of teens (72%) say they have had a discussion with their parents or guardian about finances as a result of COVID-19. Nearly a quarter (24%) of teenagers say their parents or caregivers have shared with them their concerns about paying bills while nearly one-in-seven (13%) say their parent or caregiver has lost their job due to COVID-19.

Other key findings include:

• More than half of the teens surveyed (57%) are concerned about how COVID-19 will impact their plans for the future. The only concerns that worry them more include a family member other than a parent or guardian getting sick (60%) or a parent or guardian getting sick (59%).

• 44% of high school juniors and seniors say COVID-19 has impacted their plans to pay for college, with a majority of those affected (58%) saying they are now more likely to take out student loans to help pay for college. Meanwhile 30% of those whose plans have changed for after high school graduation as a result of COVID-19 said they have had to delay their college start date and 13% said they have changed what school they plan to attend because of COVID-19.

• More than two in ten teens (22%) have a job outside the home, with 46% saying that they or their families depend on their income for living expenses. Most teens who work (62%) say they would need to frequently violate social distancing recommendations to continue working.

VA, SSI Recipients Who Don't File A Tax Return, Have Dependents Must Act By May 5th To Add Money To EIP

Over the weekend, the Internal Revenue Service issued a special alert for Supplemental Security Income and Department of Veterans Affairs beneficiaries to act by May 5 if they didn't file a tax return in 2018 or 2019 and have dependents so they can quickly receive the full amount of their Economic Impact Payment.

For VA and SSI recipients who have a qualifying child and didn't file a 2018 or 2019 tax return, they have a limited window to register to have $500 per eligible child added automatically to their soon-to-be-received $1,200 Economic Impact Payment. A quick trip to a special Non-Filers tool on IRS.gov by May 5 for these groups may help put all of their eligible Economic Income Payment into a single payment. The Non-Filers tool is available in English and Spanish.

To help spread the word to recipients with children about this special "Plus $500 Push," the IRS has additional material available on a special partners page that can be shared with friends, family members and community groups.

SSI and VA recipients: Have a child but don't file a tax return? Visit IRS.gov now

SSI and VA recipients who have children and who weren't required file a tax return in 2018 or 2019 should visit the Non-Filers: Enter Payment Info Here tool on IRS.gov. By quickly taking steps to enter information on the IRS website about them and their qualifying children, they can receive the $500 per dependent child payment automatically in addition to their $1,200 individual payment. Otherwise, their payment at this time will be $1,200 and, by law, the additional $500 per eligible child amount would be paid in association with a return filing for tax year 2020.

SSI and VA recipients who receive Compensation and Pension (C&P) benefit payments should receive their automatic payments by mid-May. If they have children and aren't required to file a tax return, both groups are urged to use the Non-Filers tool as soon as possible before the May 5 deadline. Once the deadline passes and processing begins on the $1,200 payment, they will not be eligible to use the Non-Filers tool to add eligible children. Their payment will be $1,200 and, by law, the additional $500 per eligible child amount would be paid in association with a return filing for tax year 2020.

SSA / Railroad Retirees: Economic Impact Payments arriving next week

For recipients of Social Security retirement, survivors or disability insurance benefits (SSDI) and Railroad Retirement benefits (RRB), automatic payments of $1,200 are scheduled to begin arriving next week. No action is needed on their part. This includes people who don't normally file a tax return.

For Social Security / RRB beneficiaries who don't normally file a tax return, have a child and registered using the IRS Non-Filers tool by the April 22 deadline, more payments are scheduled to begin arriving next week as well.

For SSA/RRB beneficiaries who don't normally file a tax return and have a child but did not register on the IRS Non-Filers tool by April 22, they will still receive their automatic $1,200 beginning next week. Given the deadline has passed, by law, the additional $500 per eligible child amount would be paid in association with filing a tax return for 2020. This group can no longer use the Non-Filers tool to add eligible children.

Note - Direct Express Account Holders: You may use the Non-Filers tool, but you cannot receive your and your children's payment on your Direct Express account. You may only select a bank account for direct deposit or leave bank information blank and receive the money by mail.

No action needed by most taxpayers

The Treasury Department will make these automatic payments to SSA, SSI, RRB and VA recipients. Recipients will generally receive the automatic $1,200 payments by direct deposit, Direct Express debit card or by paper check, just as they would normally receive their benefits.

For more information related to veterans and their beneficiaries who receive Compensation and Pension (C&P) benefit payments from VA, visit VA.gov.

General IRS information about the Economic Impact Payments is available on a special section of IRS.gov.

Watch out for scams related to Economic Impact Payments

The IRS urges taxpayers to be on the lookout for scams related to the Economic Impact Payments. There is no fee required to receive these payments.

BBB Scam Alert: Puppy Scams Take COVID Twist

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

It's no secret, scammers can and will find ways to take advantage of a difficult situation. The current international crisis is no exception, as puppy scams have taken on a COVID-19 twist.

BBB is receiving Scam Tracker reports of potential pet owners being told they have to pay extra for a crate or insurance to have a pet shipped because of the coronavirus. In each of the cases reported, victims were also asked to provide an alternate payment, such as a gift card, or mobile banking option that was not part of the original transaction. These are red flags that the dealer is not legitimate and they probably don't have the pet they are attempting to sell.

BBB previously conducted a study reviewing the scope of this problem, who is behind it, and the need for law enforcement consumer education to address the issue.

How to avoid puppy scams:

• Don't buy a pet without seeing it in person. If that isn't possible, conduct an internet search of the picture of the pet you are considering. If the same picture appears on multiple websites, it may be a fraud. You also can search for text from ads or testimonials, to see if the seller copied it from another site.

• Avoid wiring money, if possible. Use a credit card, in case you need to dispute the charges.

• Research prices for the breed you are interested in adopting. If someone is advertising a purebred dog for free or at a deeply discounted price, you could be dealing with a fraudulent offer.

• Consider reaching out to your local animal shelter. Especially during this time of quarantine, many shelters are looking for fosters to help relieve the animal's stress and reduce overcrowding at their facilities. The Humane Society of the United States refers consumers to local shelters. They also have tips for finding a reputable breeder.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1909 REAL PHOTO postcard was mailed to Hilga Nilson in Providence by her father who was working in the Quincy quarries at the time. One of thousands of immigrant craftsmen who brought their skills from Europe to Quincy, this quarryman proudly stands next to an example of our famous granite that was extracted in blocks like this from the hills of West Quincy. The best-grained dark and blue granite found its use in the form of important monuments, building facades and memorial structures. Lesser grades and scraps were used for all types of stonework from breakwaters to house foundations and cobblestones. One can only wonder what beautiful polished Quincy Granite memorial standing today was fashioned from this block by one of Quincy's talented artisan stonecutters. The motto of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association was "Quincy Granite - Lasting Till Everlasting."

Thank You For Saving Golf Course, Crafting CPA

In the March 12th issue of The Quincy Sun, there was an article reminiscing the drafting the 50-year lease agreement between the City of Quincy and the Furnace Brook Golf Course (FBGC) and written by Attorney George Burke of Quincy. The premise was that after the lease agreement expires the course will become property of the City of Quincy.

This lease agreement is about to expire, and thanks to Attorney Burke and the lease agreement the course will remain as an open space in perpetuity. And the mayor of Quincy, Thomas Koch has also agreed to keep it as a self-sustaining golf course open to the residents of Quincy.

This golf course has been also our family's favorite winter sport venue. The children learned their downhill skiing under the instructions of Mr. Ellis of Wollaston. In addition, we all enjoyed sledding and cross country skiing there. I am sure I am among hundreds of Quincy residents thankful to attorney Burke for this smart agreement.

What impressed me the most reading this article what that Attorney Burke considered preserving the FBGC for open space as "one of his greatest feats" not the tens and thousands of dollars in philanthropy.

As a side bar, historically Quincy has been lucky to have had the Adams and the Faxon families for bequeathing land for open space in Quincy, now under the Quincy Parks Conservancy for protection and care.

Today, however, preserving any land left in cities and towns comes under tremendous pressure for development. Therefore, in year 2000, then Secretary of Environmental Affairs, Robert Durand, also saw the threat and initiated the Community Preservation Act (CPA), and voted as a law in the State.

Under this law, cities and towns could vote to implement their own CPA and the state will match part of the funds dedicated for open space, historic preservation and affordable housing.

Quincy was reluctant to enact on this provision as it would add a small surcharge to the real estate taxes.

It was not until later, and then president of the Quincy Environmental Network Mr. Stephen Perdios took upon himself, and started a petition drive to put the matter up for the voters to decide.

I remember Steve collecting signature at the Quincy Farmers' Market, then on the Hancock lot and everywhere where people were gathered and door to door.

He collected enough signatures to warrant the question of CPA on the ballot. As a result, CPA was voted overwhelmingly in favor.

Again, I want to thank people like Attorney George Burke for saving the FBGC and Stephen Perdios and his family for bringing us the CPA for open space and historic preservation.

QHS Class Of 1964 Donates $2,020 To City Relief Fund

The Quincy High School Class of 1964 took up the challenge initiated by the QHS Class of 1974.

The '64 class donated the amount of $2,020 to the Quincy COVID-19 Relief Fund. The amount was made in honor of the graduating Class of 2020.

The current seniors will never have the well-served senior memories that we, and all previous classes, have enjoyed.

21 Appointments Beef Up Police, Fire Depts.

Appointments and promotions of 21 men will beef up and step up the efficiency of the Quincy Police and Fire Departments.

The 21 men representing the largest single change in personnel for the two protective branches in recent years were sworn in this week at City Hall. It will give both departments more manpower and flexibility and bring into existence a Police Narcotics Division to fight the ominous rise in drug abuse especially among Quincy teenagers.

Mayor James R. McIntyre, who made the appointments and promotions, said, "They are needed and will increase the efficiency of both departments, giving Quincy a first class line of defense against both fire and crime."

SECOND PARKING HEARING SET MONDAY

The City Council will set a date for a second public hearing on the proposed 140 car municipal parking lot on Mechanic Street, at its May 5 regular meeting.

The second hearing is necessary, Council President J. Vincent Smyth noted, because of opposition registered at the first public hearing.

Proponents argued that the project is necessary for the "economic vitality of not only the downtown business district but the city in general."

Opponents countered that the problem is not one of a need for parking but one relieving traffic congestion.

ENC Women's Basketball Pledges $2,200 To 3 Organizations

The Eastern Nazarene College women's basketball team launched its "DONAT3" Initiative on Oct. 14, the day before the 2019-20 campaign officially got underway.

Head coach Sacha Santimano announced the team would be donating $3 to three organizations for every three-pointer that the Lions made during the season, with a minimum donation of $25 to each organization per game.

This season, Eastern Nazarene connected on a league-best 157 three-pointers and pledged over $730 to each organization, totaling $2,200. The Lions also led the New England Collegiate Conference (NECC) with a 30.8% clip from behind the arc.

Eastern Nazarene chose OneVOICE, DOVE, and The Dianne DeVanna Center - three organizations whose missions and purposes empower and educate women and families.

"When choosing these organizations, we did a ton of research leading up to the final decision," Santimano said. "We felt these three could possibly make the most impact in their communities and where we could possibly make the most impact in their communities and where we could help to the best of our abilities."

"We wanted to make sure we were 100 percent committed to the organizations. That involved helping at events and providing assistance where needed," Santimano continued.

"We wanted to connect better with our community. Having our players participate in this initiative and community service within the organizations showed them that they could impact change in a small way. It's doesn't take big things to make big changes happen, it can start on a small scale. Within our program, we always express it's the small things that make the big things happen!"

Founded by ENC women's basketball alumna Nicole Braddock Bromley, OneVOICE and One-

VOICE4freedom works to stop child sex trafficking around the world by being a voice of awareness and prevention to those who are at high risk of being trafficked and giving hope and healing resources to those who have already been exploited.

DOVE works specifically with adults, teens, and children who have been abused, emotionally and financially, as well as physically and sexually. DOVE's services include crisis intervention, danger assessment and safety planning, supportive counseling, emergency shelter, legal advocacy and representation, and community outreach, education, and training. DOVE remains the only domestic violence shelter and community-based service provider based in Norfolk County, and also serves the greater South Shore.

The Dianne DeVanna Center has been reaching out to children, families and communities to provide education, support and services so that children have a stable, loving and nurturing environment to live and grow since 1978.

"The organizations provided us with several educational materials to help our community build an awareness of these three organizations. Ultimately, our goal was to bring awareness of each organization and provide information on how everyone can help," commented Santimano.

Santimano recently wrapped up her ninth season at the helm of the Eastern Nazarene College women's basketball program. She guided the Lions to an impressive 21-4 overall record in 2019-20. Eastern Nazarene posted a 13-1 mark in conference play to clinch the top seed in the NECC Tournament and reached the NECC Tournament championship game. Throughout the season, the team held awareness games dedicated to each of the organizations. "We had an amazing turnout from our entire student body as several students contributed by purchasing t-shirts or by just dropping a dollar here and there as we did this initiative," added Santimano. "Our team is extremely thankful for everyone who donated and supported this initiative!"

"I wanted our team to learn about generosity and what selflessness looks like. This initiative gave our FAMILY a chance to be a part of something bigger than each player, our program, and the ability to play for something more than themselves," Santimano said.

"Our program is built on FAMILY and being intentional about teaching values and concepts that are bigger than basketball."

need a major commitment," Keenan said.

"A report just came out again where Massachusetts, Boston in particular, was ranked as one of the worst traffic cities in the country. It is impacting our ability to attract young people. It is impacting where we put housing. When I look at my sons, they want to live in Quincy and they love the Boston area, they love Massachusetts, but they've got friends who talk about moving to other cities."

"You could go to Pittsburgh, for instance, and get a job in the financial services industry that pays pretty comparable to what Boston pays and you can pay half as much for housing and live in a downtown area where you can actually walk to work. You can't do that in Boston unless you're really making money in the financial services industry."

Recent college graduates and others in their age range might start to seek jobs outside of the Boston area if improvements aren't made, Keenan said, and businesses are likely to follow. He identified Philadelphia as a potential alternate to Boston.

"Young people are starting to think where do I go and if industry gets the sense young people are looking elsewhere, they will look elsewhere. We can't just rest on the idea that we have a great city with all kinds of high tech, medical, higher education, financial services opportunities here and just assume that young people are going to want to stay here," the senator said.

"I was down in Philadelphia Sunday and Monday and I think Boston is a far better city, but Philadelphia is one of the cities that young people now talk about, because housing is so much more affordable, and the economy is doing pretty well down there. I think Boston has a lot more going for it, but Philadelphia is a similar city in a lot of ways. It's got history. It has some degree of waterfront on the river. That is where young people are going to start looking if we're not careful."

Keenan said lawmakers are also looking at various ways to increase the availability of affordable housing in the region.

Gov. Charlie Baker, for example, has proposed a bill that would encourage new housing construction, including development near city and town centers. To do so, the bill would allow local boards to approve certain projects by a simple majority vote instead of the two-thirds vote currently required. That bill is still pending before the Legislature.

"The governor's housing choice bill is still pending and there is a lot of discussion about other housing options. Some of them are being discussed positively, some with concern," Keenan said.

"Positively, there is a general recognition we have to find the resources to do more affordable housing, to cobble together funding sources so that developers can build affordable housing."

Other lawmakers have floated ideas such as rent control and giving tenants the right of first refusal to purchase certain rental properties before they hit the market.

"The issue of rent control has come up...I don't think there is enough momentum to move that bill, but it is the first time that I recall that it has been discussed with any kind of sense of possibility. I think it is limited possibility, but it is the first time since I've been there that it has reached this level of discussion," Keenan said.

"Then there are some proposals about allowing tenants to have right of first refusal on the sale of investment properties. They would be able to, once they receive notice that a property was going to be sold, form a tenants' association and make an offer to the owner of the building."

The senator said he was unsure if either of those proposals would be enough to address the housing issue.

"My feeling is that those don't address the underlying cause of our housing affordability issue, which is we just don't have enough supply," Keenan said. "You can do rent control, you can do right of first refusal for tenants - neither one of those increases the number of units. They may keep some units affordable, which is important, but they don't increase the underlying issue of quantity of affordable housing available to meet demand."

Keenan identified The Watson in Quincy Point as a model that could be emulated elsewhere. The building on East Howard Street includes 28 market rate units, 86 workforce housing units for middle-income earners and 26 affordable housing units for those with lower than median incomes. Quincy contributed $2 million to the project, which was constructed by NeighborWorks and WinnCompanies.

"It's a very impressive project and they have affordable housing, workforce housing and market-rate housing. It's all in one building, it fills up quickly and it's extremely well done. Some are starting to look at that as a model - you do all three levels of housing," Keenan said of The Watson.

"They may have been the first workforce housing development in the state. I don't know exactly what the income guidelines are, but for somebody who is working, earning a decent wage, but can't afford a home in this market and can't afford a one-bedroom with a third of their income or whatever, it's a pretty good option."

Chicken, Vegetables With Bow Ties

By MARIE

We all see to talk about comfort food these days and I think any food that is enjoyed by a family is comfort food.

Today's recipe falls into that category; it and was given to me by my nephew, Chuck, who with his wife, Julianne, recently made this delicious entrée. We discuss recipes every time Chuck visits me because we both love to cook.

This one has meat, vegetables and pasta combined, so how comforting is that?

RECIPE

1 pound of chicken breast (or boneless chicken thighs cut up in bite-size pieces)
1 small bag of fresh spinach
2 zucchini, cut up

1 package of grape tomatoes, cut in half
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 red onions, diced
½ farfalle pasta or bowtie pasta
Parmesan or Romano cheese

In the hot oil sauté, the onion and add the chicken and cook until done.

Add spinach, sliced zucchini and the halved grape tomatoes and cook and stir until well blended.

While cooking the chicken, cook pasta according to directions.

When chicken mixture is done, add pasta and stir until well-combined.

Top with grated cheese.

Serve with salad.

Sweet Potato White Bean 'Chowdah'

By SUSIE

Here is a delicious dairy free luscious chowder that is simple, different, and out of this world delicious.

This will impress your family and friends. You have the protein, fiber, and a variety of antioxidants from the beans, the healthy fats from the coconut milk, Beta carotene, vitamin C, B6, potassium, fiber, and phosphorus in the potato, zinc, iron, niacin, and other important nutrients in the spinach, and the fresh herbs not only add flavor and zing but they also contain important antioxidants as well.

This chowder is easy to digest as well! Have fun with this and add some curry powder if you like for some Indian flare. Enjoy!

SWEET POTATO

WHITE BEAN 'CHOWDAH'

3 sweet potatoes peeled and chopped
4 cups chicken or veggie broth

3 cups baby spinach or baby kale
1 leek, chopped
2 cloves minced garlic
2 cans white beans drained and rinsed
1 can full fat coconut milk
fresh sage and fresh scallions, chopped olive oil or coconut oil
sea salt and pepper

Saute leeks in oil until sizzling.

Add potatoes and garlic.

Toss in seasonings and mix well.

Let flavors mingle while stirring a bit, then add the broth and beans.

Bring to boil, then simmer until potatoes are soft. About 20 or so minutes.

Next add coconut milk and chopped sage with spinach.

Test for seasonings.

Cook until spinach wilts and serve with chopped scallions on the top.

Why Do You Feel Hungry All The Time?

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Department

Editor's note: due to the coronavirus outbreak and health emergency, Quincy Health Commissioner Ruth Jones is unable to submit new articles to The Quincy Sun. We are running some of her old health articles in the interim. The column below first appeared in The Sun two years ago.

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Hunger is a complex process that all animals experience in order to uphold the energy necessary to stay alive. Contrary to popular belief, it involves more than just the stomach. A great deal of the process we think of as hunger and fullness comes from a tiny region at the center of the brain known as the hypothalamus. This part of the brain receives chemical signals for fullness and hunger, and sends chemical responses to regulate those feelings.

Hunger can be triggered by many things:

Stress: When stress first arises, it shuts down appetite as your hypothalamus conserves your resources for "fight or flight." But constant stress can lead to binge eating, particularly when cortisol comes into the picture. Cortisol is a hormone that increases hunger, and it elevates with chronic stress. Cortisol can influence the type of foods that you crave, too. Studies show that cortisol inspires the desire for high-fat, high-sugar foods. These foods have been shown to lessen stress, so that may explain why staying in a state of stress can lead to unwanted weight gain. Getting low-intensity exercise assists in reducing cortisol, and along with it, stress.

Dehydration: Since your body knows it can get moisture from food as well as water, it can be easy to mistake thirst for hunger. So the next time you feel hungry outside of mealtime, try pouring a glass of water.

Insulin Spikes: The majority of food we eat turns into glucose, a sugar that can be converted into fat for use later. Insulin has an important role in this process. With some foods, your body has to work hard to get the sugar it needs. But if you consume a high-sugar meal without much fiber, your insulin levels spike. The result is that you feel satisfied quickly in the beginning, however, the sugar sends a powerful signal to increase insulin and you're likely to end up with more insulin than you need. And that's why you tend to get hungry much sooner after a high-sugar meal.

Diabetes: Diabetes makes it more problematic for your body to turn food into energy. People with diabetes either have a difficult time producing insulin or their bodies don't utilize insulin as well as healthy people. If you have uncontrolled diabetes, the answer to your ravenous appetite may well be medical treatment to control glucose levels.

Eating Too Quickly: When you're especially hungry, you may tend to devour your food too fast. When you eat fast, your body doesn't have enough time to register a feeling of fullness. Eating your food slowly and relishing it can result in a mealtime that is more satisfying with less food.

Fat, Protein, and Fiber: What your food is made of can also have an effect on how full you will feel. Fatty foods empty slowly from the stomach, but they are less satisfying than low-fat foods. Proteins satisfy much longer than fats, and high-fiber foods are perhaps the most satisfying of all when it comes to sating hunger.

Seeing and Smelling Tasty Foods: Advertisers are well aware that eating incorporates all of our five senses. Late-night television is loaded with fast food commercials and enticement of all sorts of tasty treats. If you find yourself snacking late at night after watching TV, you may want to contemplate turning off the commercials or switching up your habits if you are trying to lose weight.

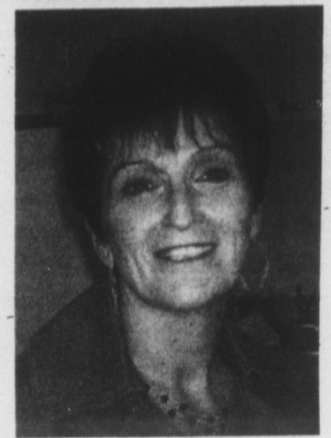

Thyroid Problems: Thyroid disorders can lead to overeating. These disorders can make you hungry all the time, even when your body has had an adequate amount of food. Some people with an overactive thyroid are always hungry. An overactive thyroid is more common in women than in men.

Medicine: About 70% of Americans take one or more prescription drugs.

Some of these medications can make you excessively hungry. Several of the most commonly prescribed drugs have this unwanted side effect such as, tricyclic antidepressants, corticosteroids and some antihistamines, as well as, some antipsychotic drugs.

Poor Sleep: The hypothalamus controls a lot of our hunger signals and does that primarily through two important hormones: leptin, which makes you hungry in low levels, and ghrelin, which makes you hungry in high levels. One study found that leptin drops and ghrelin rises in your body if you consistently get five hours of sleep a night or less. But subsequent studies have found similar results after just two nights spent sleeping four hours or less. The research demonstrates, that people with poor sleep habits become hungrier for high-carb foods loaded with calories, as well as high-fat foods.

Lack of Protein: Oddly enough, sometimes it's what you're not eating that makes you overeat. Protein seems to be more satisfying and leaves us feeling fuller longer than other nutrients. A study performed on men of varying ages examined this. The subjects were fed meals with plenty of protein, but the protein content decreased as the study went on. Researchers found that as protein decreased, the men became hungrier sooner after eating. This phenomenon was true whether these men were younger or older, and is definitely something to consider if you're trying to lose weight. Although you may be cutting certain items from your diet, it may actually help you lose weight if you remember to consume your protein. The CDC recommends 46 grams of protein for women each day and 56 grams a day for men.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Stop Scammers Before They Pick Your Pocket, Says AMAC

While more and more Americans are getting laid off due to the coronavirus crisis, fraudsters are working overtime to con you out of your money and your identity, reports the Association of Mature Americans [AMAC].

AMAC's National Spokesman, Robert Charles, recently issued a warning for seniors to be on alert for cybercrooks out to rob us at a time when we feel vulnerable. It's a warning we should all heed and for which we should all be prepared, says Rebecca Weber, the Association's CEO.

"It's bad enough that our lives have been upended as a result of the pandemic. Don't let scammers use the disease as a way to rob you, access your credit cards and sell you snake oil," says Weber.

She notes that, as Charles cautioned, the authorities have been sounding the alarm since the outbreak of the coronavirus in the U.S. And, a report from the Federal Trade Commission shows a particularly worrying "surge" in the number of consumer fraud complaints with a disproportionate percentage of those complaints coming from individuals over 50 years of age.

"Isolation and uncertainty can trigger a need to 'keep current' about the deadly virus and your computer is the easiest way to get the news for which you are searching. But be aware that the bad guys are using the epidemic and computer technology to pick your pocket or worse, to steal your identity," We-

On Monday, April 20, at approximately 8:50 a.m., Officers Donovan, King, Kelly, Sweetland, Walker, Hartnett and S. Kelly were dispatched to a residential home operated by a Boston hospital for "a disorder with a knife in progress."

Officers Donovan and King arrived on scene and determined that the incident had calmed and peace was restored. Officer King met with the house manager who said there was a problem with one of the residents and then led officers through the house to the male's location.

Officer King conducted a pat frisk of the male based on the initial report that a knife was involved in the incident. Once it was determined the male was not armed and there were no weapons in his general vicinity, Officer King asked the male what happened and he stated he got into an argument with one of the residents of the house over hot water, which then turned into an argument with the assistant house manager.

The male then blurted out, "This is a nice place. I probably shouldn't have pulled a knife on him." Officer King placed the male into handcuffs at this point.

Officer Donovan interviewed the assistant house manager who said the male had been residing there for just a few days but "He has been an issue since he arrived at the house, often acting extremely confrontational, alluding to his gang ties from Boston, saying he'd 'Get his boys to make a visit' to the house." He added he did not see the initial confrontation but when he heard it, he walked into the kitchen to see the male holding a knife in a menacing manner while yelling at another resident. He said the two were approximately one foot from each other, commenting, "I thought he was really going to stab him."

Just before Police units arrived on scene, the male yelled out, "I'm going to get my boys to come shoot this place up." Officer Donovan then interviewed the victim, who said he was in the kitchen trying to get hot water from the sink which there has been a problem with and when he said out loud, "Still not hot", the male became irate. The victim stated the male confronted him and accused him of stealing hot water. The victim tried to calm the male, telling him his comment was not directed at him but the male refused to listen and then became irate.

The victim said he believed the male was just looking for a reason to get kicked out of the program. The victim said the staff then intervened and informed the male he was no longer welcome at the house. The victim stated that when staff advised the male to pack his belongings or they would packed for him, the male grabbed a steak knife out of the sink, pointed it at the staff member and said, "Touch my stuff and see what happens."

When the male advanced toward the victim in an aggressive manner while holding the knife, the victim quickly exited the kitchen. Officer Donovan then spoke with the staff member who witnessed the altercation and he confirmed the male was being discharged from the program as his altercation with the victim was the last incident they were going to tolerate. He added that the male had a crazy look in his eyes.

The male then walked towards his room with the knife but changed his demeanor, attempting to minimize the incident. The staff member said the male attempted to give him the knife while stating, "I had to act like that because I can't be seen looking like a b@#$%." The staff member said he went to the safety of his own room while awaiting the arrival of the Police. He added he did see the male take the knife and bring it back downstairs.

Officer Walker found one steak knife in the sink which had a black handle and approximately 5-inch blade. The victim confirmed it was the same knife used by the male. Officer Walker collected the knife and secured it for evidentiary purposes.

The male, a 21-year-old Boston resident, was placed under arrest and transported to the station for booking. He was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon (to wit knife). During booking, Quincy Police Communications discovered a warrant for the male from Connecticut. Dispatcher Galligan spoke with Connecticut officials who said they would extradite the male. He was additionally charged with being a Fugitive from Justice.

Nice Work!

REMINDER: LOTS OF SCAMS OUT THERE!

Simply put, if you get a phone call, email or letter from Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, your credit card company, your bank, etc. and you have concerns that it may be a scam, do not call the number that they provide. Instead, take the time to look up the actual telephone number and then explain to the representative the situation. The representative of the particular agency can verify if they were contacting you!

MBTA Addressing Issues At Wollaston T Station

about it on social media," Keenan said.

"They responded, in the short term, with strategic placement of rugs, so when you came down the steps from the outside, the rugs would capture some of the moisture off your feet and make the tile less slippery. It wasn't exactly 100 percent effective. When you came down the platform and you hit the terrazzo tile floor, it was very slippery. I noticed that and I have kind of decent soles on my shoes.

"So, they have since buffed the floor. They have removed kind of the glaze or the sealant - I don't know what it was exactly - that was on the floor...they have buffed that off and I have observed that it is not as slippery as it was, even in some wet conditions. Even when it wasn't raining outside, prior to them doing this work it was slippery, and I think it's because it is kind of below grade there and as a result it gets some moisture

"The extensive flooding, it's not near what it was. It seems to be manageable.

They are addressing that, and they are addressing leaks."

The MBTA, he added, is still working with the contractor to address issues as they arise. The transit agency has yet to close out the project.

"They are still working with the contractor. They have not accepted the station as complete, so they have some leverage with the contractor, and they are requiring the contractor to make these repairs," Keenan said. "Until they are satisfied that they are all done, they won't accept it."

The senator said such issues are typical when new buildings or other facilities first open.

"There are a lot of things that are going to have to be worked out," he said. "Just like when you build a new building or build a new house, there are things you realize two or three months after you move in, 'maybe that outlet should have been moved.' Those things are going to pop up on this station I'm sure, but overall, people seem to be appreciative.

"I had a person just the other day tell me 'it really came out nice, I enjoy taking it. It's so much better than it was - now if we could get the trains.'"

The MBTA is in the process of replacing its Red and Orange Line trains. The MBTA expects to have a new fleet of Orange Line trains in service by 2022 and a full complement of new Red Line trains the following year.

Recently two new Orange Line trains were taken out of service after inspectors found a problem with the trains' bolster, a piece that helps connect each car's body with its undercarriage. This was the second time since last fall the MBTA had to pull the Orange Line trains out of service.

Keenan is optimistic the MBTA will be able to avoid similar issues with the Red Line cars.

"My hope is we will learn from every one of the things that has gone wrong with the Orange Line trains and by the time they are in full production on the Red Line trains, all those things will have been addressed, so the Red Line trains will be less of a chance of those things occurring," he said.

The MBTA has begun testing the Red Line trains, but Keenan was uncertain when they would go into service. He noted the issues with the Orange Line cars and the novel coronavirus outbreak could both potentially delay the manufacturing process.

"I don't know whether the situation with the Orange Line cars has caused a problem. The other thing we don't know is whether what is going on now will impact the production of those trains," Keenan said.

"There was the issue of China early on with the tariffs and whether that would impact the vehicles. There were assurances from the state that it would not - that they had a type of contract that prevented them from having to cover the costs of anything associated with the tariffs. Then there was the concern about materials being available to do the work. Those concerns subsided.

"Now you have the coronavirus and will that impact supplies coming from elsewhere in the world and, if we do get the supplies here, will it impact the workforce out in Springfield and their ability to keep things on schedule."

MA Announces Fed Approval To Assist National School Lunch Program Participants

The Baker-Polito Administration on April 23 announced that it received federal approval to promote increased food security for families who participate in the United States Department of Agriculture's National School Lunch Program (NSLP) through an initiative called Pandemic EBT, or P-EBT.

As of October 2019, more than 500,000 students receive free or reduced-price meals through the NSLP. Families receiving P-EBT will get a payment equal $5.70 per student per day of school closure through this new initiative, bringing more than $200 million in federal dollars to the state.

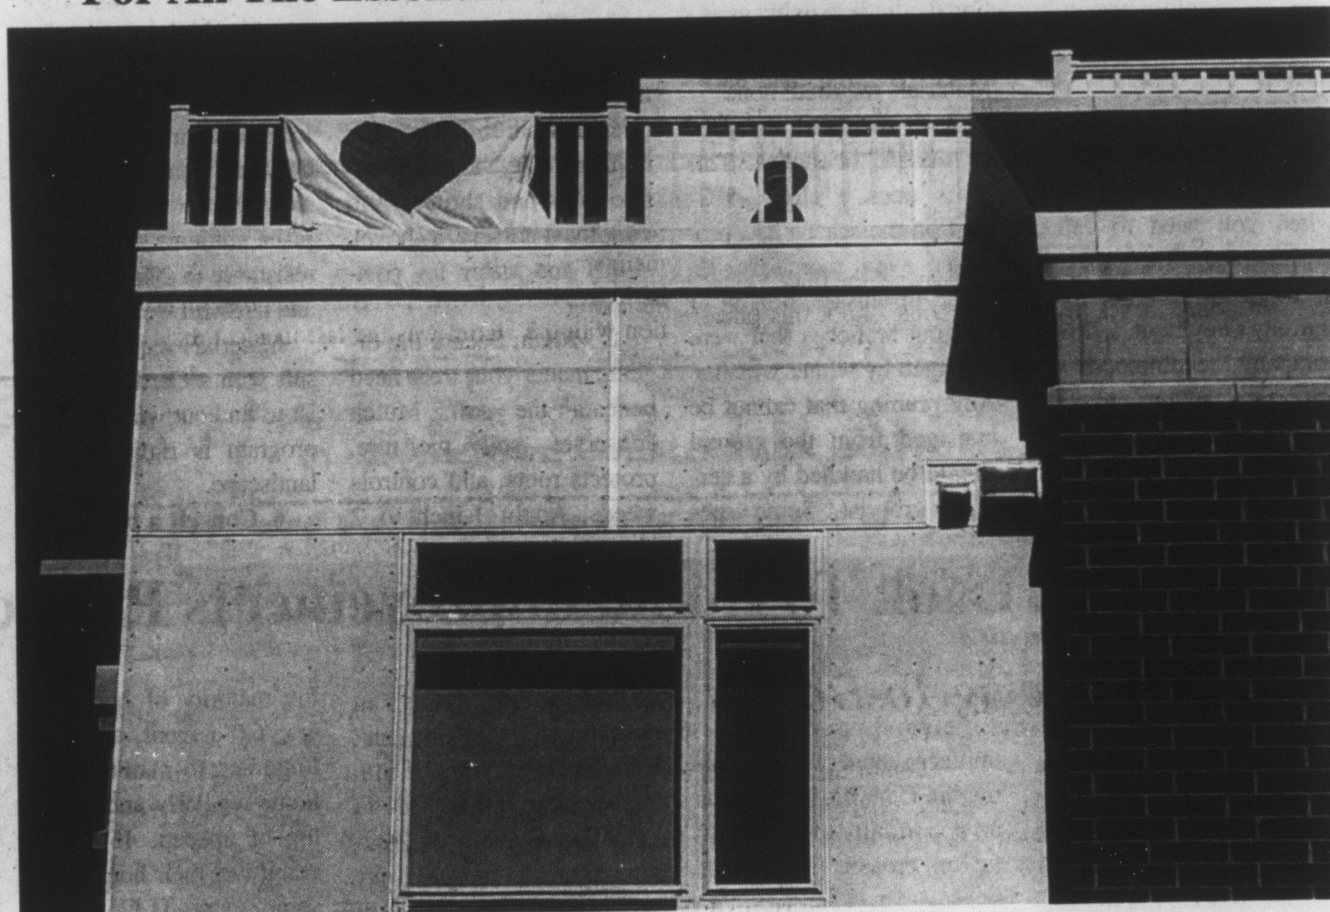

"DTA has been pursuing all available tools and resources to support individuals and families impacted by this public health crisis. In light of school closures, the approval of this collaborative initiative adds another critical tool to the state's effort to leverage federal funds, promote food security, and provide additional food assistance to students and their families. This initiative will also bring close to $200 million into the Commonwealth's economy, supporting our local grocery stores, corner stores, and their employees," said Department of Transitional Assistance (DTA) Commissioner Amy Kershaw.

"I'm happy to be working across agencies to get these additional benefits to eligible students' families," Elementary and Secondary Education Commissioner Jeffrey C. Riley said. "This will supplement the great work that districts and other organizations are already doing to provide grab-and-go meals to students, and I know that many families' needs have increased as a result of the pandemic."

For All The Essential Workers - Some Love From Above

ber cautions. The FBI, in fact, has issued a warning to take measures that can protect you when you go online: "do your research before clicking on links purporting to provide information on the virus; donating to a charity online or through social media; contributing to a crowdfunding campaign; purchasing products online; or giving up your personal information in order to supposedly receive money or other benefits."

But, Weber points out, the bad guys are not just on the Internet.

Robocallers are having a field day as well during the crisis. The Washington Post reported recently that "As the coronavirus pandemic exploded across the country, so did robocalls: American consumers were bombarded with more than 132 million automated calls a day in March according to YouMail, which offers an app that blocks unwanted telecom intrusions."

Both the Internet fraudsters and the phone scammers are peddling everything from fake self-testing kits to phony medicines and hard to get medical products such as face masks.

It's easy enough to deal with the robocallers; just hang up on them or block them from calling. Your smartphone provider can help you find an effective call blocking app.

And then there are the person-to-person pandemic scams. For example, be wary of door-to-door salesmen offering protective devices and access to testing.

"These old school scammers can come up with seemingly ingenious methods of getting their victims to part with their money," according to Weber.

"Recently, it was reported that conmen in Johannesburg came up with a rip-off that gives new meaning to the term 'money laundering.' The crooks knocked on doors claiming to be from the South African Reserve Bank. They used fake credentials and told residents they were collecting coronavirus contaminated banknotes and coins. They even gave their victims vouchers that could be exchanged for 'clean money.'"

Dealing with such physical threats is also easy; don't answer the knock at your door and if the hustler is persistent call the police.

The bigger peril during these times is that your personal information might be compromised? The experts say if you believe it's happened to you, report it as soon as possible to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), the police and the IRS. You should also report it to your banks and other financial institutions where you have accounts.

It's also a good idea to do a thorough check of your credit reports. Look for new, unauthorized activity. Opening new accounts is also recommended as is signing up for credit monitoring and changing all of your Internet passwords, replacing them with new, stronger passwords.

You may also want to "freeze" your credit reports and those of other family members. While freezing your credit will prevent you from opening any new financial accounts, it will also prevent hackers from opening fraudulent accounts using your name. You can always lift the freeze on a temporary or permanent basis. It's easy to do as explained by the FTC on its Website [https://www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0497-credit-freeze-faqs]. In a nutshell, it simply requires you to request that the three major credit reporting agencies place a freeze on your credit report. Once you feel comfortable that your credit report is protected you can simply request that the agencies lift the freeze.

You can contact the agencies by phone or via their Websites, says Weber. Equifax: 800-685-1111 Equifax.com/personal/credit-report-services, Experian: 888-397-3742 Experian.com/help and Transunion 888-909-8872 TransUnion.com/credit-help.

6 Spring Landscaping Tips To Do At Home

Well-cared for trees are an asset to landscapes and provide many benefits, like adding considerable value to a property. Regular tree maintenance, such as pruning and fertilization, can make a world of difference when it comes to a tree's health.

While at home, you can still take proactive steps to check your trees and know when you need to call a professional. George Barth, ISA certified arborist at Hartney Greymont, a Davey company, recommends six important actions to take now to better position your landscape for spring.

1. Inspect trees and shrubs. When heavy rains occur your landscape may suffer from standing water and/or flood damage. Barth suggests checking areas with standing water in the yard. "Are there trees and shrubs nearby? Pay special attention to high-risk trees." Materials required: none

2. Prune dead, diseased or unsafe branches. This gives trees a clean, fresh start on the season and promotes even more growth. Clean up unsafe, broken or hanging branches that were damaged by winter weather. Any pruning that cannot be managed from the ground should be handled by a certified arborist. Some species should be avoided in the spring due to threat of disease or pest infestation from open pruning wounds. A certified arborist knows what trees to prune and when to fix health risks.

3. Plant new trees. Spring is one of the best times of year to plant new trees and shrubs. Materials required: Try to find native trees and shrubs from your local nursery, a shovel, mulch and water for post-planting.

4. Mulch. Secure the organic matter your trees need beneath the soil. Mulch conserves soil moisture, protects roots, and controls weeds. Apply 1-inch to 2 inches of shredded hard-wood or leaf mulch. But don't over mulch the tree or "volcano" mulch. Keep the mulch 2 inches to 3 inches away from the trunk, or the trunk will rot. Materials required: Mulch, wheelbarrow, shovel, rake

5. Fertilize. Before your trees and shrubs enter peak growing season, apply a slow-release fertilizer to replace nutrients and improve resistance to disease, insects and stressful weather.

Materials required: Consult with a Certified Arborist to find out what fertilizer program is right for your landscape.

6. Consult a professional. Consult a professional arborist to learn if cabling and bracing are needed to reduce strain and stress on tree canopies when arborists are again making house calls. Materials required: none

As trees are waking up from dormancy, they are very much alive and need a helping hand.

"By employing preventive maintenance, cleanup, and general preparedness now, you can put the wheels in motion for a bold, smooth transition into spring," explains Barth. Hiring a qualified arborist for preventive maintenance now promotes proper tree care and gives trees a boost before spring.

For more information, call George Barth, Hartney's local arborist, at (781) 444-1227 or visit Hartney.com to learn how to care for, protect and enhance your landscape this season.

Americans Look To Home Improvements Projects During Self-Isolation

Social Distancing To-Do List

As Americans face a softened economy and spend more time at home amid the COVID-19 crisis, homeowners across the country are using the time to be more productive around the house.

A new national survey conducted online by Kelton on behalf of vipHomeLink, a home management app that helps homeowners organize, maintain and improve their homes, revealed that 48 percent of homeowners see the unprecedented pause to flatten the COVID-19 curve as an opportunity to get caught up on projects around the house.

With millions of Americans confined to their homes, nearly half, or 45 percent, intend to use this self-isolation period to tackle things they've been putting off, from organizing closets and pantries to catching up on home maintenance work to sorting important documents and paperwork throughout their homes. vipHomeLink is offering a three-month app membership for free to help homeowners on their improvement journeys by keeping their home data all in one place, providing expert advice and recommendations and helping to track their projects - as with the challenging economic outlook this crisis has caused, the last thing homeowners need is a surprise home expense.

The survey of 569 American homeowners ages 18 and over shows that while the majority of homeowners, 63 percent, think it's important to maintain their home regularly and stay on top of upkeep, 46 percent admit that their home needs some extra TLC, with a growing list of repairs and projects they would love to accomplish.

"With all the uncertainty relating to COVID-19, protecting and maintaining your home is more important than ever, and homeowners across the country are utilizing this time to give their home the TLC it may have been lacking due to the hustle and bustle of everyday life," said vipHomeLink founder and CEO, Alfred Bentley III. "Proper home management is critical to ensure that homeowners are not hit with surprise expenses. Our app can help homeowners of all skill levels - from expert to novice - providing guidance to know what to do and when to do it all while saving members time and money. We know life gets busy, so our app sends push notifications nudging the user when it is time to check on or maintain certain items in the home, to avoid those surprising costs."

The survey showed the following breakdown of where Americans plan to turn their home improvement attention:

- 45% are using the time to tackle things they've been putting off

- 27% plan to take care of home maintenance issues they've postponed in the past

- 39% are organizing closets and pantries

- 25% are sorting through and systemizing important paperwork regarding their home and the things inside

- 11% are going all-in on a major project to turn their dreams into reality; more than 15 million homeowners have started a home renovation project such as redecorating a room or finishing a basement.

Fed Approval To Assist National School Lunch Program Participants

P-EBT is administered by DTA and the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE). Funds through the program will be issued in the coming weeks, beginning with households with active Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) cases. Nearly half of the households who will receive assistance are SNAP recipients. DTA and DESE are working with local school districts to provide P-EBT benefits to families who would have received free or reduced-priced meals. More information on when and how benefits will be issued will be shared soon.

The Administration is partnering with Project Bread and the Shah Family Foundation to share information and resources with households who will be receiving P-EBT. Information about P-EBT can be found at: Mass.gov/p-ebt. The Shah Foundation will be setting up a P-EBT page with additional information. For questions about P-EBT or other food access resources, call Project Bread's Food-Source hotline at 800-645-8333.

"We know we need big solutions to solve a crisis of this size. P-EBT is a great example and we applaud our leaders here in Massachusetts and DTA for taking action so more than 500,000 kids can buy food that will help keep them healthy during the crisis," said Erin McAleer, President of Project Bread.

"We are proud to partner with Governor Baker and his administration to support families in accessing healthy food for their children during this challenging time. Every child deserves daily nutritious meals - whether school is in session or not - and we know now more than ever that this is critical to building strong, resilient communities," said Jill Shah, President of the Shah Family Foundation said.

Since the beginning of this public health crisis, the weekly average number of SNAP applications received has increased by nearly 400 percent. The Administration remains committed to supporting food security and nutrition for Massachusetts residents. P-EBT builds on DTA and DESE's ongoing efforts to promote food security for families and children who have been impacted by COVID-19, including:

- Setting up more than 1,500 grab and go meal sites at schools across the Commonwealth
- Issuing emergency SNAP benefits to more than 240,000 households to bring all SNAP recipients to their maximum benefit amount, bringing more than $40 million into the state

- Streamlining SNAP application processes and extending certification periods
- Pursuing the opportunity to enable SNAP recipients to make online EBT food purchases

DTA assists and empowers low-income individuals and families to meet their basic needs, improve their quality of life, and achieve long term economic self-sufficiency. DTA serves one in nine residents of the Commonwealth with direct economic assistance and food assistance, as well as workforce training opportunities. Learn more: <https://www.mass.gov/DTA/COVID-19>

The Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education is committed to preparing all students for success after high school. The Department's work includes licensing educators, distributing state and federal education money, helping districts implement learning standards, overseeing statewide standardized tests, monitoring schools and districts, and convening districts and individuals to share best practices. In addition, we collect data to inform state and local cal decisions. Learn more at doe.mass.edu/covid19/.

The Shah Family Foundation supports innovative and transformative work in education, healthcare and the community. We believe that interesting and lasting solutions sit where these intersect. Our primary work and support is centered in Boston, with the goal of sharing broadly the programs and innovations that prove successful in our home town. Learn more at shahfoundation.org/.

Project Bread is committed to preventing and ending hunger in Massachusetts. We provide access to food for people who are hungry today while working to break the cycle of hunger through advocacy, education, and community action. Learn more at ProjectBread.org.

More Support, Resources, Accountability Measures for Nursing Facilities

The Baker-Polito Administration announced Tuesday a second round of funding up to $130 million for nursing facilities to support COVID-19 response efforts over the next two months, as well as increased funding of $44 million for residential congregate care service providers.

The funding will support staffing costs, infection control and personal protective equipment (PPE). In addition to increased financial support, the administration has implemented required testing for staff and residents of nursing facilities.

Additional Support Services: The Commonwealth will offer support for temporary staffing assistance for all nursing homes in need. This includes clinical response teams of 120 nurses and CNAs deployed in teams of 10 during emergency situations, crisis management support and deployment of the Massachusetts National Guard. These efforts will be supported by a centralized infection control performance improvement center established by the Massachusetts Senior Care Association.

Increased Financial Support for Nursing Facilities: The administration is releasing a second round of funding for two months for nursing homes that meet specific requirements and accountability measures.

The funding is dependent on required COVID-19 testing of all staff and residents, regular infection control audits, appropriate allocation of funding and the public release of facility performance and funding use.

Further details about this second round of funding available for nursing facilities include:

• Required Testing: Facilities must test all staff and residents, and report results to the state. Facilities are also encouraged to identify and pursue testing avenues with area hospitals, EMS or other providers. The state's mobile testing program is available for those facilities unable to set up testing.

• In-person Clinical Audits: All nursing facilities will be regularly audited in-person for infection control and accountability, and each will receive a baseline audit during the first two weeks of May. These clinical audits will be conducted using a 28-point Infection Control Checklist, based on DPH, CDC and industry guidance. This checklist includes infection control, PPE supply and usage, staffing, clinical care, and communication requirements.

Facilities will be scored into three ratings: in adherence (green), in adherence but warrants inspection (yellow) and not in adherence (red).

• Funding Accountability: Funding release is dependent on accountability measures, including audit ratings and appropriate funding allocation. Facilities must use this funding for staffing, infection control, PPE and other supports that directly benefit staff, including hotels for staff retention and infection control.

• Staffing Supports: The Commonwealth will provide temporary staffing assistance to all nursing homes. The Commonwealth will provide temporary staffing assistance to all nursing homes for staff retention and infection control.

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of April 26th, 2020

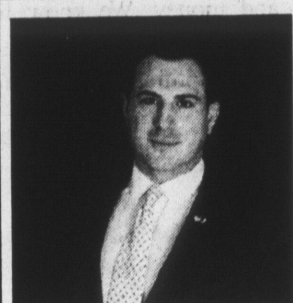

- The outbound lane of Dennis Ryan Parkway remains closed for reconstruction of the roadway and sidewalk in this area. The contractor intends on paving the outbound section in the following week (weather dependent).
- Plantings continue along the new Hancock Garage at the Revere Rd sidewalk and will be completed this week.
- The brick band construction continues at Cottage Ave along with preparation for a new landscape island in the sidewalk in front of Alba's Restaurant.
- Construction of the north foundation wall continues at the General's Bridge project and the abatement work continues at the old Commonwealth/Revel building on Parkway. The demolition of old Commonwealth building is scheduled to commence in the upcoming weeks.
- Abatement work has been completed to the buildings from the Payless Shoe Source store to the Noodle Design restaurant next to the Community Dentist of Quincy. Cut and cap of the existing utility services will begin this week on Hancock Street. The existing utilities are being decommissioned in preparation for the buildings demolition which is anticipated to begin within next couple of weeks.

Quincy Girl Scouts Donate Food, Cookies To Hospital Nurses

EIGHT GIRL SCOUTS from Troop 85042 in Quincy recently collected Girl Scout cookies and donated them to the night shift at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth. The scouts had learned that food that was donated and delivered to health care workers at the hospital was gone before the night shift workers arrived. So the girls decided they wanted to do something to show the night shift nurses they are appreciated. The scouts wanted to give the cookies they had collected during the cookie season and use some of their cookie money to purchase food to thank the nurses for all they do. They donated fruit salad, veggie tray and a brownie tray to go with the cookies. The girls did not visit the hospital; they made arrangements to drop off the food at the home of one of the nurses and she brought them.

to help support them."

CARES Act Emergency Funding for Students

Quincy College Students can apply for emergency relief funds available to current Spring Semester students under Section 18004(c) of the Coronavirus Aid Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act. Funds are designed to meet the pressing financial needs caused by the disruption of campus operations from the coronavirus, including food, housing, course materials, technology, health care, and childcare.

Current Quincy College spring semester students must complete a COVID-19 Emergency Funding form to request funding through the CARES Act. Some restrictions apply.

United Way Funding Partnership

Quincy College in partnership with United Way of Greater Plymouth County has partnered in creating the United Way Assistance Application. The United Way of Greater Plymouth County has donated forty $50 food gift cards to assist Quincy College students during this difficult time.

Quincy College Laptop Loan Program

Quincy College additionally identified students who required laptops for remote learning and worked to distribute nearly 30 laptops to students in need during the first week of remote learning to avoid education disruptions.

Free Remote Teaching & Learning Resources

The College's student facing services and administrative offices like Advising, Admissions, and Financial Aid are fully remote, offering free online tutoring, free ebook access, personalized, one-on-one support and other virtual events. Even Quincy College Student Life is hosting virtual student lounge events, webinars with guest speakers, virtual transfer fairs, and other events to support Quincy College students as they continue their education.

"As the pandemic continues to develop and our students, staff, and faculty are facing unique personal and professional challenges, we are seeking new and innovative ways to leverage technology, connect with our community, and prioritize the health and well-being of our community under the guidance of the Center for Disease Control along with state and local agencies," said Quincy College Senior Vice President of Enrollment Management and Strategic Planning, Dr. Jennifer Luddy, DM.

New Houghs Neck Boat Ramp Opening This Summer

By SCOTT JACKSON

The former Houghs Neck Maritime Center has been torn down and a new boat ramp should be ready to open in its place this July.

The old maritime center building, located at 137 Bayview Ave, was torn down in two phases beginning in early March, Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said in a phone interview. One contractor tore down the building itself while a second was brought in to remove the building's foundation.

"Everything went smoothly," McCarthy said of the demolition.

The new boat ramp will be installed in the spot where the building was located. A contractor began to prepare the site of the new ramp on April 16.

The old boat ramp on site will be removed once the new ramp opens. The city plans to build a new maritime center building in the vicinity of the ramp; that new building is still being designed.

Relocating the boat ramp to the former site of the building will allow it to be set at a steeper angle, which will allow boaters to use it outside of high tide.

"It will give us more pitch, more of an angle. It will be better off for all involved," McCarthy said.

In addition, the new boat ramp will be 28 feet wide, twice the width of the present boat ramp.

Pilings will also be installed alongside the boat to accommodate a permanent dock. Presently, the Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit installs a temporary dock at the beginning of the boating season and removes it at the end of the season.

"It's a project to put the dock in," McCarthy said. "This will be much stronger...a more solid docking system for years to come."

The new ramp could open as early as July, McCarthy said. The old ramp will remain open through the start of boating season, but it could close in June depending on how much space the contractor installing the new ramp requires.

"We could have to close it after the boats go into the water," McCarthy said.

The current coronavirus pandemic is not expected to delay the installation of the new boat ramp, McCarthy said, but that could change depending on the severity of the outbreak. The contractor will heed the advice of state and local officials to protect workers on site.

"It is still on schedule, but we are also going to follow the mayor's lead and the governor's lead," McCarthy said. "We don't want to jeopardize any of the workers."

Once the new ramp is open, the old ramp will be removed. The beach, seawall and riprap in the area will then be restored.

To help alleviate potential crowding at the site of the maritime center, the councillor said the boat ramp on Bayswater Road on the opposite side of Houghs Neck could open as soon as this week, weather permitting.

"We'll open it up a little early to get a little breathing room. It can be used if there are delays at the maritime center," if too many boats were trying to use that space at once, McCarthy said.

He noted, however, that the Bayswater Road boat ramp can only be used at high tide because there is no channel in the water there.

The city previously received a $680,000 grant from the Massachusetts Seaport Economic Council and $170,000 from Quincy's Community Preservation Committee to pay for the installation of the new ramp.

The city received an additional $1 million from the Seaport Economic Council to pay for the design and construction of the new maritime center, which will be located on the same site in the vicinity of the present boat ramp.

Conceptual plans for the new building were unveiled in August 2017. The plan at that time included a three-story facility with storage space, an office and kitchen, and a community room on the first floor along with exhibition space highlighting Houghs Neck's history; a larger meeting room on the second floor; and office space for the Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit on the top floor. The plan also included outdoor decks on each floor facing seaward to Hingham Bay with an observation tower looking landward toward Houghs Neck with Quincy Bay in the distance.

City officials are working with an architect to draw up new plans for the site. McCarthy said he liked the look of the 2017 plans but would like to see the proposal scaled down in size.

"We're going to keep a beautiful design that was in place, but cut that square footage," he said.

The new building, he added, will likely be pulled away from the waterline to help protect the structure from coastal storms like nor'easters and hurricanes.

The architect is also working on plans to maximize parking on site, which could include spaces for boat trailers.

FOUNDATION of the Houghs Neck Maritime Center was all that remained after Manet Contracting demolished the structure in early March. A second contractor was brought in to remove the foundation.

"We're trying to come up with a plan so you have a maritime center folks can utilize with decent parking in that big lot," McCarthy said, describing the current lot as "underutilized" in terms of parking.

The City Council in June 2018 approved purchasing two homes in the vicinity parking lot using money that was set aside in a $27 million park improvement bond, which will be paid back using hotel tax receipts. McCarthy said the city is still in talks with the owner of the third home on site to acquire that property.

If the city were able to acquire that home, the councillor said the lot could hold as many as 80 to 85 parking spaces. The lot would have room for about 50 spaces if the city were to reconfigure the parking area without having acquired any of those homes, he said.

McCarthy said he does not have a timeline for when construction of the new maritime center could begin. The design of the new building was delayed because city officials switched their focus to the construction of a new seawall along Quincy Bay from Adams Shore to Houghs Neck in the wake of severe flooding caused by a March 2018 nor'easter.

McCarthy said he would be meeting with the team designing the new maritime center building in the near future, followed by community meetings after bans on public gatherings enacted amid the coronavirus pandemic are lifted.

"It could be a gem down there," McCarthy said of the plans for the site. "It will be very, very nice to have the end of the Neck up to par. It will be a nice area for folks to venture down to."

WORK to prepare the former site of the Houghs Neck Maritime Center for a new boat ramp began on April 16. The new ramp, which will be steeper and wider than the one it is replacing, is set to open in July. The Quincy Yacht Club is pictured in the background.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The Lamb is usually excited about taking on a new challenge. But if that's a touch of doubt you're feeling, maybe it's you telling yourself to go slow on this until you learn more about it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Accepting new commitments when you haven't yet finished the batch on hand could be a bit rash. Better to ease up on the new ones until you get further along with your current lot.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Try to be more open-minded in working toward a resolution of that standoff between yourself and a colleague or family member. A little flexibility now could work to your advantage later.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Some people might be anxious about your plans. So you need to take time to explain what you expect to do and how you expect to do it. And don't forget to ask for suggestions.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Dealing with an unfamiliar problem can be difficult. The wisest course you can take is to ask for advice from those who have been where you are and have come through it. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Tackle a frustrating job problem by considering possibilities you might have ignored before. This reassures colleagues you're serious about finding a solution, even if it's not totally yours.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your balanced approach to life proves to be helpful this week when someone you care for needs your spiritual comfort, while someone else benefits from your tough-love practicality.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Once again, you're likely to be asked to keep a secret for someone. But do you really want to do so? Be honest with yourself and with your needs before you make any such commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Taking a more direct approach from the more diplomatic one you've used before could make a difference in finally resolving a too-long-held disagreement. Try it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Being asked for advice is flattering to the Sea Goat, who has a habit of saying the right thing. This time, expect someone to be especially impressed and to act on that sentiment.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) With a number of pressures easing, your project could be making a lot more progress than you expected by this time. That's great news. But don't let yourself be distracted; stay with it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An interesting challenge looms that could be exactly what you've been looking for. Discuss this with colleagues who could have much to contribute and who might want to join with you.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your heart is always open to offer loving concern for others. And they, in turn, reach out to complete the circle...

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Are you ready for a musical about Steven Spielberg's classic 1975 film "Jaws"? The Papermill Playhouse in New Jersey, often used to develop Broadway-bound shows, has booked an impressive season from now until 2021. It has planned productions of the classic board game and comedy film "Clue," "The Sound of Music" and the Elton John/Tim Rice musical "Aida," before ending the season with "Bruce" (June 9-July 21, 2021). Bruce was the name of the uncooperative mechanical shark that gave Spielberg and his team endless problems. Mark your calendars.

Meanwhile, another Bruce, Bruce Willis, has been more than cooperative with his busy film schedule. "10 Minutes Gone," with Michael Chiklis, was released last September; "Trauma Center," with Nicky Whelan, debuted Dec. 6; and "Survive the Night," with CW star Chad Michael Murray, went straight to video.

Willis also has a slate of films that don't yet have release dates. The sci-fi action thriller "Breach," about an interstellar ark, is due in the fall. "Midnight in the Switchgrass" has a great cast with Oscar-nominee Emile Hirsch, Megan Fox, Lucas Haas and Sistine Rose Stallone (21-year-old daughter of Sylvester), but shooting is on hold due to the coronavirus. He's also got "McClane," an offshoot based on Willis' character from the "Die Hard" franchise, along with the alien invasion movie "Cosmic Sin," with Luke Wilson and Frank Grillo.

Wilson just completed the sports film "12 Mighty Orphans," set during the Great Depression, with Martin Sheen, Robert Duvall, "Seinfeld's" Wayne Knight and Treat Williams. Frank Grillo has completed "The Hitman's Wife's Bodyguard," with Ryan Reynolds, Morgan Freeman, Samuel L. Jackson, Salma Hayek, Antonio Banderas and Richard E. Grant, for an Aug. 28 release.

Due to Tom Hanks' bout with the coronavirus, Baz Luhrmann's film, shooting in Australia, about Elvis Presley, in which Hanks plays Presley's manager Colonial Parker to Austin Butler's Elvis, has been shut down until Hanks has recovered. Maggie Gyllenhaal plays Elvis' mother.

Some last words about Kenny Rogers. When comedian Pat Paulsen was starring on "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" in 1968, he launched a comical campaign for president of the United States. His political fundraiser was a 99-cent dinner at a Beverly Hills cafeteria that brought out every star in Hollywood. The band playing the gala was The First Edition, and I did a lot of photos with them and got to know them well. The lead singer's name was Kenny Rogers. Their first hit was "Ruby Don't Take Your Love to Town."

Luckily, for many years I was able to spend time with Kenny and hang out at his house from time to time with Mickey Dolenz. Kenny was just as nice and down to earth as you were led to believe he was. His music stays with us now that he's joined the "Islands In the Stream"!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Heart & Crown Chair

Several rare "Heart and Crown" side chairs were sold at a Skinner auction in Massachusetts. The high-back chair featuring molded bannisters, turned legs and a rush seat is part of an old tradition. Furniture makers in Connecticut created this style and used it from about 1740 to 1770. It was an interpretation of the expensive Philadelphia and Boston chairs made at the time. Instead of the curved crest of the formal city chairs, the top of the back was made with a cut-out heart and a crown-shaped crest. Almost all of the Heart and Crown chairs were painted black or dark brown, and all had the rush seat. An auctioned chair, 44 3/4 inches high and attributed to Andrew Durand of Milford, Connecticut, is painted black and has the characteristic bannisters and turnings. It auctioned several years ago for $9,000, which was three times the estimate.

Q: I have a two-bladed pocket knife I think is quite old. It's marked "Solingen, Germany" on one side of the blade and "Arnex, stainless" on the other side. Both side panels are embossed with three heads of racehorses, horseshoes and riding crops. My late wife worked for a horse farm owner who gave it to her for me. Is it worth keeping?

A: Solingen, Germany, is known as the "City of Blades." It has been the center of knife-making in Germany since the Middle Ages and home to several manufacturers of knives, swords and cutlery. Arnex was in business in Solingen from about 1920 to 1940. Some pocket knives made by Arnex have handles decorated with animals, sports, trains, zeppelins and other themes. The value of your pocket knife is under $25.

Q: I have a tall, white pitcher with daisies painted on it and gold trim. It's marked "Bel-Terr China, U.S.A., 22 Kt. Gold." I'd like to sell it. What is it worth?

A: Bel-Terr China was founded in 1961 by Belden and Terry Ham in East Palestine, Ohio. The company is no longer in business. Bel-Terr pitchers, about 8 inches tall, sell for under $20.

• The first washing machine was invented in 1782 by H. Sidgier of Great Britain. His design was later honed by other inventors, including William Blackstone, who invented the first at-home washer as a birthday gift for his wife.

• Drinking seawater will cause rapid dehydration and, if enough is consumed, eventually death. Frozen seawater is a much safer alternative, since it contains only a tenth as much salt as the liquid form, due to the fact that the salt is separated from the water when freezing as it does not fit into the crystalline structure of ice.

• The first lipstick appeared in ancient Mesopotamia approximately 4,000 years ago, when women decorated their lips with dust made from precious gems.

Thought for the Day:

"The world is a dangerous place to live; not because of the people who are evil, but because of the people who don't do anything about it."

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

• Free up space on your smartphone by setting text messages to auto delete after a certain amount of time, like 30 or 60 days. If you have a friend who loves to send you gifts or endless bitmojis, you might want to have your chuckle, then delete. These image files take up much more space than a text message.

• "Baking soda can have a whitening effect on some fabrics and is a good alternative for items that might be sensitive to the harshness of bleach in the washing machine. It's fantastic for musty items as well. Add a cup of baking soda to a load of towels, then add a cup of vinegar to the rinse water."

• Periodically take down curtains and run them through the clothes dryer to dust. If they are not delicate, you can add a couple wool dryer balls to help loosen the dust. Rehang as soon as they are finished to avoid unsightly wrinkles.

• "Drop a small item in a hard to reach place? Slip a sock over the end of a vacuum hose attachment and hold to secure. Turn on the vacuum and "suck up" the small item. The suction will hold it in place, but it will not go into the vacuum. Rather, it will be held captive in the sock, which you can simply slip off for retrieval."

• Pet treats for fish? Sure! If you have lettuce in your vegetable crisper, most varieties of fish would enjoy a nibble on a floating piece. Just make sure that you remove any uneaten bits after a day.

• "Tired of waiting for that frothy head on your beer or root beer to go down? Stick your finger in it and watch it disappear like magic."

STICKELERS

by Terry Stickels

An example of a simple anagram:

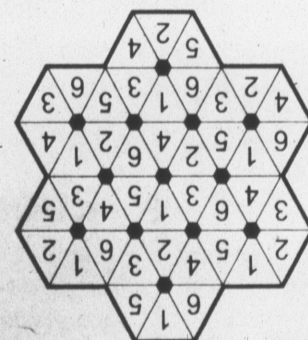

The building was of RECENT construction, but the cement had been of poor quality and the CENTER was crumbling.

The physics professor's work had been by fellow scientists, journalists and even the president. Her 40 years of research was remarkable for all the discoveries she had made ... and yet, no one could know her. The one equation she had most wanted to solve still eluded her, and it had turned into a nightmare.

Q: Will "9-1-1: Lone Star" be coming back for another season? Also, will they ever have the characters from that show and the original "9-1-1" series crossing over? -- A.A.

A: Good news! Both "9-1-1" and its spin-off, "9-1-1: Lone Star," have been renewed by Fox and will be back whenever the fall TV season resumes. As for mixing the casts, producer Tim Minear said he'd rather keep the two shows "in their own lanes, for a bit," according to TVLine.com. As you can tell from the title, the "Lone Star" edition is set in Texas -- Austin to be precise. It stars Rob Lowe as a firefighter who relocates from Manhattan.

Q: Who plays Emily on "Chicago Fire"? I really like the actress, but I can't place where I've seen her before. -- B.H.

A: Annie Ilonze has played paramedic Emily Foster for the past couple years on NBC's "Chicago Fire" and occasionally on its sister shows "Chicago Med" and "Chicago PD." Unfortunately, Ilonze is leaving "Chicago Fire" after the recent finale.

Her first regular series role was as Maya on the daytime soap "General Hospital," and she's been working steadily ever since on prime time shows like "Arrow," "Drop Dead Diva" and "Person of Interest." I'm sure it won't be long before she lands another successful series or perhaps branches out into movies.

Q: When will the next season of "The Mandalorian" be back on Disney+? I realize with all the special effects it could take a long time to create new episodes, but I really hope it's sooner rather than later. -- C.D.

A: The "Star Wars" space Western "The Mandalorian" was a huge hit with devoted fans and critics alike when it debuted on Disney's new streaming service, Disney+. A second season was quickly ordered, but it's not expected to be available to stream until October 2020.

Fortunately, a behind-the-scenes documentary series "Disney Gallery: The Mandalorian," premieres Monday, May 4, and will feature never-before-seen footage as well as interviews and panel discussions with the stars and creators. Of course, if this also means more coverage of The Child, AKA the adorable "Baby Yoda," sign me up.

Q: I know that singer Gwen Stefani is still with Blake Shelton, but has her ex, Gavin Rossdale, been in any serious relationships since their split? -- E.L.

A: It's been five years since Stefani and Rossdale filed for divorce after it was rumored he was having an affair with their children's nanny. Stefani soon found love with her fellow superstar judge from "The Voice" in Shelton, but Rossdale's love life has been much quieter. Most recently during the coronavirus stay-at-home orders, he was seen donning a mask while walking his dog with his girlfriend, model Natalie Golba. Meanwhile, Stefani has been sheltered on Shelton's property in Oklahoma.

Cooped Up Toddlers Keep Tormenting Pets

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: My toddlers will not stop tormenting our pets! They chase the cat and pull his tail; they dive-bomb the dog and scare her every time she lays down for a nap. I'm tired of chasing after them and trying to stop them. What else can I do? Lock the pets in another room? — Susanna Y., Ogden, Utah

DEAR SUSANNA: Let me ask you this: Why should the pets be punished every time your toddlers misbehave? Your dog should be able to nap peacefully in her own doggie bed, and the cat should be able to sit quietly at the window.

That's the ideal, anyway. I know it's difficult, especially since all of us are cooped up right now. But, consider that toddlers tend to react just as well to a punishment/reward system as most dogs (and some cats) do, if not more so.

Make it clear that your kids are not to torment the pets -- and that if they do, there will be consequences. As to the consequences: What are their favorite things to do? Play with specific toys? Watch certain Netflix Kids cartoons? Eat candy?

They may be very young, but threatening to (temporarily) remove one of their favorite activities or snacks can be effective. And of course, there's always the tried-and-true time out.

I wish I had more advice to give you. Chasing around toddlers is truly exhausting. Just try to be firm and make it clear that it's wrong for them to torment the pets. We'll all be able to get out of the house soon.

nieces and nephews.

Interment will be at Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton, at a later date.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Kathy M. Trubiano, 62

Kathy Margaret (Mullane) Trubiano, age 62, died April 19 after a courageous battle with ovarian cancer, at her home in Marshfield Hills, with her beloved husband Paul by her side.

She is survived by her husband Paul Trubiano and son Adam Trubiano, her three sisters Ellen Mullane Orsi and husband Dennis, Ann Marie Ramey and her husband Jack and Judy Mullane as well as numerous nieces and nephews. She is also survived by her Aunt Margaret Laverty, of Falmouth, and her family. Mrs. Trubiano was predeceased by her parents Arthur J. and Patricia A. (Morrissey) Mullane and infant sister Patty.

Mrs. Trubiano was born in Salem on April 7, 1958. She grew up in Buffalo, New York, and Falmouth. She graduated from Falmouth High School in 1976. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree in early education and special needs from Lesley University in 1980. She then went on to earn a Master's degree in teaching in 2005, from Fitchburg State University. During her pursuit of her Master's degree she was diagnosed with breast cancer. This sidelined her for a year but in her true spirit of grit, Mrs. Trubiano then returned to complete her Master's degree.

She started her teaching career in special education in Pittsfield; she then went onto a sales position in the food services industry. After that she entered the financial services industry working for BFDS and Deutsche Bank in Norwell until they moved.

It was after that she returned to her passion of teaching. Mrs. Trubiano taught at the Thomas Hamilton Elementary School in Weymouth for nearly 20 years. Teaching was Mrs. Trubiano's passion. She was totally committed and devoted to her students. She loved being greeted by her students as Mrs. "T" as she would have them call her. Mrs. Trubiano loved the school community and made many long-lasting friendships there.

During her time at Lesley she became friends with a group who went on to vacation together for a weekend every summer. They fondly called it "Ladies Weekend." Her friendships are a testament of the kind and caring person she always was. She enjoyed boating with her husband Paul along the South Shore waters and inlets. They loved to go to the "Spit" on a Sunday afternoon, drop anchor and enjoy the day. She had many interests including cooking, entertaining, reading and spending time at the beach.

A private gathering was held April 25 in the McDonald Keohane Funeral Home in Weymouth followed by a private graveside service at Couch Cemetery in Marshfield. A recording of the service was posted on her obituary on keohane.com on Saturday.

A celebration of life service will be held at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Priscilla M. Pulgini

Priscilla M. (Haney) Pulgini, a lifelong resident of Quincy, died April 18.

Born in Quincy, she was the daughter of the late Bertram Haney and Rosemary (O'Neil), and the beloved wife of Samuel J. Pulgini of Quincy. She was the devoted mother of the late Lori James Stevens died April 19 at the age of 87. Born in Boston, he was a lifelong resident of Squantum.

Mr. Stevens joined the Merchant Marines out of high school where he traveled to Europe. After returning to Quincy he worked in marinas in Quincy and retired from Brighton Marine Health Center. He was a member of the Town River Yacht Club. He loved boating and spending time on the water.

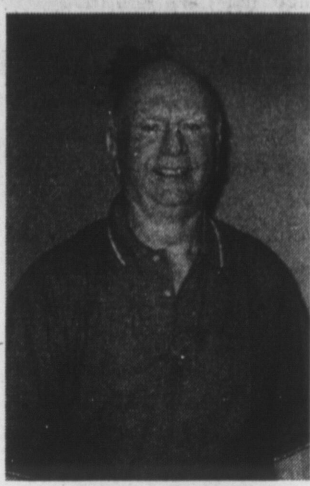

Son to the late Richard and Margaret Stevens. Beloved husband of the late Frances (Mann) Stevens. Loving father to Donna Stevens of Quincy. Brother of the late David, Edward, Richard, Thomas & Eleanor Stevens. Step father to the late George Mann. He will also be forever remembered by his numerous nieces, nephews and dear friends. He will be sorely missed by Gussie, his ever-present cocker spaniel/poodle companion.

Susan Papaz Holland, 68

Susan Papaz Holland, 68, of Quincy, died peacefully April 20, surrounded by family, after a long, courageous battle with cancer.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, she was the daughter of the late Joseph A. Papaz and Virginia G. (Kerwin). She was a proud graduate of Fontbonne Academy and Boston College. Teaching was her life, her passion and her love. She was a teacher for many years in the Quincy, Cohasset and Randolph Public Schools. Most recently, after retirement, Ms. Papaz Holland worked with the Pilgrim Area Collaborative. Throughout four decades of teaching, she educated, and touched the lives of thousands of students.

She was the devoted mother of Paul Holland and his wife Marybeth of Braintree, Elizabeth Holland

JAMES STEVENS

Funeral arrangements, out of necessity, are strictly private at this time, but a memorial Mass will be announced at a later time.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to South Shore VNA - South Shore Health Foundation to 55 Fogg Road, Weymouth, MA 02190.

SUSAN PAPAZ HOLLAND

and her wife Kate of South Hamilton, Joseph Holland and his wife Nicole of Oak Bluffs, Jacqueline Salade and her husband William of Lemon Grove, CA, and Victoria McDonnell and her husband Ned of Braintree. She was the proud grandmother of Katherine, James, Claire, Mollie, Eli, Joseph, Westin, Lily, and Will. She was the beloved sister of Nancy Flynn, of Quincy. She is also survived by many other family and friends whom she adored.

In consideration of current events and keeping in mind our number one priority of protecting our families and our community, the family held private visitation in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Public services will follow at a later date, and an announcement will be published in this newspaper and on the funeral home website.

Ruth H. Mathews, 100

Ruth H. (Hayden) Mathews died April 18.

Born on November 26, 1919, Mrs. Mathews celebrated her 100th birthday surrounded by all of her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. She was born in Winthrop, one of four daughters of the late Edward and Helen (Lane) Hayden. She was the loving wife of 56 years of Walter "Dean" Mathews who passed away in 2000. They raised their family in North Quincy where she resided until "retiring" to Mansfield in 2014 to be closer to her family. She was a 1937 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Mrs. Mathews, a registered nurse, graduated from Massachusetts Memorial Hospital Nursing School in 1940. She enlisted in the Navy to serve during World War II and met Dean at Chelsea Naval Hospital while caring for him after suffering injuries when the ship he was serving on, the USS Northampton, was sunk in the Battle of Tasafaronga. She resigned from the Navy in 1944 to wed Dean because at that time married women were not permitted to serve in the Navy.

Mrs. Mathews continued her nursing career at the former Milton Hospital until retirement.

The former Atlantic Memorial Congregational Church was the center of the Mathews family life. Mrs. Mathews served her church in various capacities including singing in the choir, involvement with several women's group and social activities.

But the center of her attention was always her loving family. She is survived by her children: Walter and wife Bette of Anna Maria, Florida, Janis McGue of Mansfield, William and wife Vickie of Springdale, Arkansas, Deborah and husband Steven Hawes of Mansfield, Charles and wife Teresa of Henderson, Nevada and Carol Mathews and partner Jeff Dawson of San Antonio, Texas. Additionally, she leaves 12 grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren. She is also survived by her sister Lois Salenius of North Quincy and several nieces and nephews. Ruth was predeceased by her daughter Nancy and her husband Gael O'Donnell and her sisters, Bettina Hiltbold and Florence Farrell.

In November of last year, in honor of Veterans Day, Mrs. Mathews was presented with the Quilt of Valor. The mission of the Quilts of Valor Foundation is to cover service members and veterans touched by war with comforting and healing Quilts of Valor. She was further honored to serve as the Grand Marshall of the Veterans Day parade in Mansfield that same week.

Mrs. Mathews was an active member of the Order of the Eastern Star. She was also involved with Order of the Rainbow Girls during the time her daughters were involved, serving as Mother Advisor for several years. And she was a Den Leader to many Cub Scouts over the years.

Burial services will be private. A celebration of Mrs. Mathews' life will be held at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to Interfaith Social Services, 105 Adams St., Quincy, MA 02169, or any organization of your choosing.

Funeral arrangements were made by Sherman & Jackson Funeral Home, Mansfield.

Wiesia Sullivan, 73

WIESIA SULLIVAN

A well respected and much loved teacher, Mrs. Sullivan later returned to teaching in the Brockton school system at the East Junior High School and retired in 2013 after a career of over thirty years.

A member of St. Ann's Parish in North Quincy, and a member of the former St. Michael's Parish of Haverhill, Mrs. Sullivan was an avid reader and was fluent in five languages. She also enjoyed crocheting, knitting, and cooking and was devoted to her husband, children and grandchildren.

She will be sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her husband of forty-seven years, James J. "Jim" Sullivan, a daughter, Katherine "Katie" (Sullivan) Misiaszek and her husband, Alex, of Windham, NH, a son, James M. "Jimmy" Sullivan and his wife, Melissa, of Pleasantville, NY, a sister, Renia Michalowski, of Haverhill, and four grandchildren, Alex Misiaszek, Michael Misiaszek, Maddie Sullivan and James Sullivan.

Due to the national health emergency, a private family funeral service with burial in St. Patrick Cemetery in Haverhill was held under the direction of Brookside Chapel & Funeral Home, Plaistow, NH.

Memorial donations be made to Hospice of the South Shore, 55 Fogg Rd., South Weymouth, MA 02190.

Barbara M. Hart, 87

OBITUARIES

Alice Fraher-Mason, 91

Alice Fraher-Mason, 91, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, died April 19 at Care One nursing home after complications from the COVID-19 virus.

She was preceded in death by both of her loving husbands William Fraher of Weymouth and Ralph Mason of Adamsville, TN.

Mrs. Fraher-Mason was always a hard worker and took pride in everything she did, first as the manager of Colonial Federal Savings Bank in Holbrook and then as a customer sales representative both at Talbots in Hingham and at Kohl's in Hingham before retiring.

She enjoyed all of the pleasures life has to offer including reading her books, woman's bible study, dancing, and having fun with her endless amount of friends, but most of all she enjoyed spending time with her family whom she was constantly surrounded by up until the very end.

She was the loving mother of Robin Russell and her husband Joseph of Weymouth as well as Janet McCann and her husband John of Pembroke.

She is survived by both of her daughters as well as her 6 grandchildren, Joseph Russell Jr., Tracy Watt, Taylor Morais, William Russell, Jina Smith and Jill Adams along with 12 great grandchildren whom she loved dearly.

She will be remembered for her lovable yet feisty personality and her sarcastic sense of humor that always made everyone smile.

In lieu of a service, a celebration of life will be planned at a later date.

Funeral arrangements were made by Magoun-Biggins Funeral Home, Rockland.

Anne M. Jennette, 83

Anne M. (Joyce) Jennette died April 22 at the age of 83 after a brief illness. Mrs. Jennette resided both in Quincy and Braintree.

She married John Jennette on Aug. 25, 1956 and enjoyed 63 loving years of marriage. During this time, she built and nourished a Jennette legacy based on love, religion and faith. No matter where in the U.S. life took her children, Mrs. Jennette always had time to celebrate milestones and listen and offer support and guidance. Her greatest joy was watching her family grow. Anne made time to talk and establish a special bond with each grandchild with her natural ability to create a sense of calm, her sound life advice and her unyielding hope and love.

Mrs. Jennette was a longtime parishioner at St. Joseph's Church in Quincy. She was the coordinator and teacher of the First Communion class for many years. Mrs. Jennette also enjoyed many mornings watching the babies for the Quincy Teen Mother Program and for Friends of the Unborn. Her strong faith in God and dedication to the community were an inspiration to those around her.

She was the beloved wife of Deacon John Jennette. She is the loving mother of daughters, Karen (Brian) White, Loveland,

Rosemary F. Davis, 93

Rosemary Frances (Davis) Davis, 93, of Quincy, died April 22.

Born in Boston, she was the eldest of six children of the late Michael Joseph "Joe" Davis and Florence (Campbell). A graduate of St. Gregory High School, she went on to have a long and successful career with the New England Telephone Co. starting out as a long distance and international operator, working her way into a management position. She was a member of the Telephone Pioneers.

Mrs. Davis was a strong and independent woman, who had a deep faith in God. She enjoyed traveling and spending time at her RV in New Hampshire and then on the Cape. She loved to crochet and gifted numerous beautiful afghans and baby blankets. She also enjoyed reading, knitting, shopping and collecting items such as Hummel figurines, Sebastian and Annalee Dolls, Thomas Kinkade paintings and electronic gadgets. The greatest joys in Mrs. Davis' life came from time spent with her family, and her faithful canine companion Gretchen, who predeceased her.

She was the beloved wife of the late Forrest M. Davis, his wife Christine and their children Jennifer, Nicole and Eric. Beloved wife of 40 years to the late Peter P. Alban; and sister to the late Edward Jones, Edith Budrick, Phyllis Marsh and Evelyn Witkus. Sister in law to the late Anne and Robert Di Tocco. Also survived by many loving nieces, nephews and friends.

In light of current circumstances, immediate services will be private, with burial at Blue Hill Cemetery in Braintree. A memorial Mass in celebration of her life is planned for a future date. An announcement will be published in this newspaper and on the Keohane Funeral Home website.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 3 Speen St., Suite 250, Framingham, MA 01701.

Beatrice Blake, 91

Beatrice "Bea" Blake, 91, died peacefully April 23 from complications associated with the Covid-19 virus.

Mrs. Blake was an amazing wife, mother to her four children, grandmother to ten grandchildren, and great-grandmother to 5 great-grandchildren. She was the manager for the family service business. The family grew up in Merrymount, a small community in Quincy. She and her husband, "Blakey" attended to a very active social schedule at their beach side home. She was a member of the Merrymount Association, the Red Hat Society, and the Ibis Golf Club in Florida. Mrs. Blake was a longtime member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church. She enjoyed skiing, boating, golf, traveling, and spending time in her Florida home.

Born in Prince Edward Island, Canada, she was one of eleven children of the late Peter McKenna and Georgina (Griffin). She was the beloved wife of the late Richard E. Blake, and the devoted mother of Linda Fitzgerald and her husband Ted of Quincy, William R. Blake and his wife Gale of Plymouth, Robert A. Blake DDS and his wife Alison of Beverly, and Kevin B. Blake and his wife Tracy of Hingham. She was the loving grandmother of Julie Farley, Jane Kearns, Anna Gauthier, Jacqueline Carvalho, Lindsay Cassaro, and Christian, Lilly, Caroline, Anthony, and Gabriella Blake, and the proud great-grandmother of Ryan and Elizabeth Farley, Delaney Kearns, and Colton, Ivy, and Noelle Carvalho. She was the sister of Georgina MacNeil of FL, Earl McKenna of CA, and the late Martina Doyle, and John, Patrick, Emmett, James, Stephen, Michael, and Ivan McKenna. Beatrice is survived by many nieces and nephews.

In light of current circumstances, immediate services will be private, with burial in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree. A memorial Mass in celebration of her life is planned for a future date. An announcement will be published in this newspaper and on the funeral home website.

Carol M. Butler

Carol Marie (Schorr) Butler, of Quincy, formerly of Braintree, died peacefully, surrounded by her loving family, on April 17, four days shy of her 90th birthday.

She was born April 21, 1930 in Boston to Bertha (Yaffee) and Franz Schorr. She was raised in Boston, graduated one year early from Girls' High School in Boston and spent most of her life in Braintree. Mrs. Butler was a devoted wife, mother, grandmother, and friend to many. She was brilliantly smart, hilariously funny, deeply compassionate, simultaneously grounded and wildly adventurous — our "Viking" matriarch.

In her youth, she sang opera as a coloratura soprano, training and performing at Boston Symphony Hall and Steinert Hall. Her lifelong passion was opera, and she performed throughout her lifetime and well into retirement in Florida.

During World War II, she waited for Robert Butler to return from his service with the United States Marine Corps' 1st Marine Division in Guam and the Peleliu Islands. Upon his return from military service, "my Bob" took her for a picnic on Castle Island, where he proposed marriage. They married on Dec. 30 1949 and settled in Braintree. She served on the Castle Island Association Historical Committee for many years. She attended Boston City Hospital School of Nursing and spent her entire career in the nursing field. Mrs. Butler began as a scrub nurse in the operating room at Boston City Hospital, and later worked in labor and delivery at the Harley Hospital. She also worked for 18 years as a nurse in Dr. Vincent Pattavina's private practice on Hancock Street in Braintree (this was perhaps her favorite job ever). When the Pattavina's retired and closed the practice, she continued working as a nurse at Randolph Medical Center and eventually retired from Blue Cross Blue Shield.

Mrs. Butler enjoyed retirement in Holiday, Florida before returning to Massachusetts to be with her family. She traveled the world, throughout South America, Europe, Hawaii, China, Australia and Russia (her mother's homeland). Although she enjoyed traveling, she loved coming home to the beaches of Cape Cod and her family.

She was a devout Christian and church soloist, and shared her faith generously through service, reconciliation, and love. Mrs. Butler was a selfless and caring woman, who will be sorely missed by all who were blessed to have known her.

Beloved wife of the late Robert Butler. Loving mother of Steven Butler of Benson, AZ, Judith Stuart of Naples, FL, and Arlington, VA, Keith Butler of Port Richey, FL and Carol Lochiatto of Braintree. Cherished grandmother of Colleen, Shannon, Ryan, Timothy, Cassandra, Trevor, Nicole, Brooke and James. Caring great-grandmother of Hailey, Connor, Kiersten, Timothy, Tyler, John, Luke and Vivienne. Devoted sister of the late Robert Schorr.

Mrs. Butler's family will honor and remember her life privately at a graveside service of thanksgiving, burial and committal in Braintree Cemetery. A celebration of life will be held at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to Disabled American Veterans at dav.org, the National Brain Tumor Society at braintumor.org or the Castle Island Association, PO Box 342, South Boston, MA 02127.

Funeral arrangements were made by Cartwright Funeral Homes.

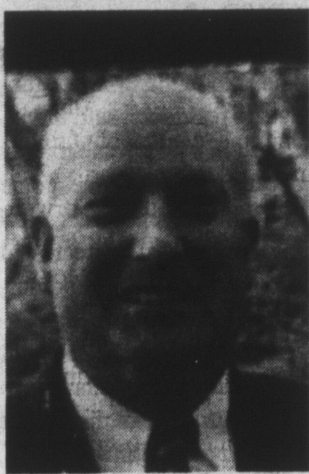

John G. LeBlanc, 68

John "Jack" Gilbert LeBlanc, age 68, died Sunday after a long illness.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, he was the only son of Pierre L.G. LeBlanc and Madeline Thompson LeBlanc. Mr. LeBlanc was a graduate of St. Ann's, Wollaston, North Quincy High School and Northeastern University. He retired from a lengthy career in financial services in 2018.

Mr. LeBlanc is survived by his partner Maureen Kelly, sons Daniel and his wife Holly, and Michael, grand-daughter Tessa, sisters Claire McNally and her husband Michael, and Jean Oakes and her husband Tom, nieces Stacey and Stephanie, late nephew Stephen and many grand-nieces and nephews.

Friends likely had many adjectives to describe Mr. LeBlanc such as strong, a voracious eater, genuine, well-read and kind. But the labels he loved most were friend, father, coach and

JOHN G. LeBLANC

Boston sports fan. He enjoyed the 10 pack at Fenway every year with the guys, his annual pilgrimage to Gillette and his Monday golf league.

In this COVID time of restrictions and absence of ritual you may be wondering how best to honor Mr. LeBlanc's memory. His family urges that you consider honoring his life and his two-and-a-half-year cancer battle by contributing to his favorite charity, The Jimmy Fund, at jimmyfund.org/gift. Or you may choose to donate to VNA Care Network and Hospice at vnacarenetwork.org, who tenderly cared for him at home these past months.

Mr. LeBlanc's family would like to extend their sincere gratitude to all who supported him through his life and illness. There are so many that helped ferry him to/from his numerous appointments, feasted with him at local eateries and visited with Jack in his home or by phone in true acts of friendship. Mr. LeBlanc often reflected on Jim Valvano's ESPY Awards speech; "Cancer can take away my physical abilities. It cannot touch my mind; it cannot touch my heart and it cannot touch my soul. And those three things are going to carry on forever."

Immediate services for Mr. LeBlanc are private. Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Stephen Panarelli, 67

Stephen Panarelli, 67, of Quincy, died April 23 after a lengthy illness.

Born and raised in Quincy, Mr. Panarelli was a graduate of North Quincy High School and the University of Massachusetts. He worked for the airlines in Boston, Philadelphia, and Fairbanks, Alaska for 25 years. He loved aviation and enjoyed piloting his deHavilland Tiger Moth every chance he had. Mr. Panarelli was also a keen student of history, visiting many battlefields within the U.S. and Europe. Classical music was a big part of his life, especially STEPHEN PANARELLI the music of Ludwig van Beethoven.

Mr. Panarelli was the beloved son of Josephine (Tedesco) of Quincy, and the late Matteo Panarelli. He was the loving brother of Michael and his wife Linda of Georgetown, Texas, Donna of Quincy, Ronald of Harrisville, Rhode Island, Paul of Stoughton, and the uncle of Bregitta Dreibrodt of Texas and her family. Additionally, he is survived by an aunt, uncle, and many cousins.

In light of current circumstances, services for Mr. Panarelli will be private with burial at Pine Hill Cemetery in Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

ing homes during the COVID-19 public health crisis, including clinical rapid response teams to provide urgent, short-term staffing for facilities in need, crisis management experts, and the deployment of the Massachusetts National Guard to aid with logistical, environmental and other supports. The state will also contract with staffing agencies to support facilities that are otherwise unable to access staffing agencies.

Infection Control Performance Improvement Center: The Massachusetts Senior Care Association and Hebrew Senior Life, in coordination with other industry providers, will lead an infection control performance improvement center to ensure accountability and provide assistance to facilities that are struggling with infection control capability. The performance improvement center will provide infection control protocols and trainings and PPE supply chain and management support, as well as identify, triage and provide infection control specialist support and intervention.

Public Reporting: All performance measures and funding use will be publicly reported using a mandatory reporting template, and the Commonwealth will provide consolidated information in the testing completion status by facility, COVID-19 case counts and mortality of staff and residents, and audit results. These reports will be due shortly after June 30, and the Commonwealth will then compile and deliver a public report.

Increased Support for Residential Congregate Care Service Providers: The administration is providing a second phase of increased funding — $44 million — across purchase of service residential congregate care service providers during the COVID-19 outbreak. This funding builds on the $95 million in increased funding announced on March 30, bringing the total funding for these providers to $139 million, and will support increased staffing costs, infection control and PPE.

To mitigate many residential congregate care service providers' expenses related to the COVID-19 surge, Executive Office of Health and Human Services (EOHHS) agencies will increase the monthly reimbursement for May and June services for an additional 15%, in addition to the previously announced 10% increase. Further support to address provider needs during the surge include mobile COVID-19 testing expansion and coordination with MEMA to provide PPE to providers.

EOHHS agencies work with 238 residential service providers throughout the Commonwealth to ensure the health and well-being of over 20,500 individuals reflecting diverse populations, including children, youth and families, and individuals with physical, cognitive, emotional, behavioral health, intellectual and developmental disabilities and survivors of domestic and sexual violence.

Vincent J. Villard

Vincent J. "Vinnie" Villard of Quincy died April 25 at his home.

The beloved husband of the late Irene Brenda (O'Brien) Villard, he was the loving father of the late Eleanor O'Brien Villard, and is survived by his daughter and best buddy, Brenda M. Villard of Quincy, sister Ann Connell of Neponset, sister-in-law Elpe Villard of CA and several nieces and nephews.

A WWII veteran, U.S. Navy, Mr. Villard was a retired employee of the Commonwealth of MA, and a long-time member of St. John/St. Joseph Parishes where he served as an usher. At St. John's he was a 50+ year member of the Holy Name, having served as president, and was a member of St. Vincent de Paul. At St. Joseph's he served as a Eucharistic minister and altar server at daily Mass. A member of the N. Quincy Knights of Columbus, he was also an avid sports fan, especially of his beloved Bruins and NY Giants.

Mr. Villard enjoyed numerous vacations to Hawaii, California, Las Vegas and Walt Disney World with his family. When asked where he came from, his answer was Dorchester, but he was a proud Quincy resident for 68 years where he enjoyed the city's politics, working on many campaigns, and eating at his favorite place, McKay's.

Due to current events, services will be private.

Cecilia A. Sullivan, 88

Cecilia A. (Kawalski) Sullivan, age 88, of Wollaston died peacefully April 25 after a period of failing health related to Alzheimer's disease.

Beloved wife of the late Joseph T. Sullivan. Loving mother to Sheila M. Paolucci and her husband James of Milton and Moira Sweetland of Canton. Cherished Nana of Nina and Joseph CECILIA A. SULLIVAN Paolucci, Daniel and Grace Sweetland. Sister-in-law of Marion E. Rogantino of Quincy, John L. and Michele Sullivan of Jamaica Plain, Claire Sullivan of E. Bridgewater and the late Andrew Rogantino, Kevin Sullivan, Thomas A. Sullivan. Also survived by many loving nieces, nephews and cousins.

Retired from the United States Postal Service (Quincy Center and the South Postal Annex) and the Charlestown Navy Yard. Devoted parishioner of St. Agatha Church for over 50 years. She spoke fondly and proudly about her childhood home in the North End of Boston.

Mrs. Sullivan was a kind and thoughtful person, a friend to many, and was a loving and supportive mother to her daughters. She adored her grandchildren. She was a wonderful cook and baker, best known for her delicious calzones, pizzelle cookies and, to the delight of her husband, Irish bread! She enjoyed trips to Newport, R.I. and to the casinos and loved to play Bingo. She and her husband traveled with friends and they enjoyed their retirement together.

Due to current COVID-19 directives, a private family graveside service will be held at Bourne National Cemetery and a memorial service will be held at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to ASP Teen Service Trips, St. Agatha Church, 432 Adams St., Milton, MA 02186 or to the "Youth Ministry/Kids Camp" of St. Gerard Majella Church, 1864 Washington St., Canton, MA 02021.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Patricia A. Trotman, 84

Patricia A. Trotman, 84, of Quincy, formerly of Randolph, died April 25 following a short illness. She was the daughter of the late James Conway and the late Jeannette (Breton) Marmen.

Mrs. Trotman was a former member of St. Mary's Church, Randolph. She relished her role as a stay at home mom, and she enjoyed cooking, reading and dancing to music, though her favorite times were those spent in the company of her loving family.

Wife of Alfred Trotman. Mother of Michael Frates and his wife Liisa Eddy of Clinton and Deborah Walker and her husband Christopher of Oakham. Sister of William Marmen of Acushnet and Jacqueline Martin of Cape Cod. Grandmother of

Madison and Nathan Frates and Ava Walker. Also survived by many dear friends and extended family.

Due to current health concerns, her funeral and burial arrangements are private.

May 18 New Target Date For Businesses Reopening

expire May 4.

During a State House press conference Tuesday afternoon, Baker said the number of residents hospitalized for COVID-19 has leveled off in recent days, but there has yet to be a downward trend in hospitalizations.

"We have plateaued, but we have stayed at a high level of hospitalizations," the governor responded when asked why he extended his orders another two weeks.

Baker said he understood residents might want the restrictions lifted sooner but said doing so could cause infections to surge.

"We're all incredibly eager to move on to the next phase, but if we move on too soon, we risk a spike in infections," he said, which would require additional closures.

"We are moving in the right direction with the virus, but we are clearly not where we need to be."

Baker announced the formation of a 19-member task force, led by Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito and Housing and Economic Development Secretary Mike Kenneally, to determine how to re-open the economy going forward. The task force includes the mayors of Lawrence and Easthampton, the chief of staff to Boston Mayor Marty Walsh, the state's commissioner of public health and transportation secretary, health care experts and representatives from various industries.

Polito said the task force planned to meet later Tuesday and would continue to meet daily going forward.

"This is a process that needs to be smart, needs to put safety first, and needs to be phased," she said. "This is a process that must and will be guided by the public health metrics we watch every day."

Baker said he would also work with his counterparts in New England and other Northeastern states.

"We need to talk to each other and stay in touch," Baker said, to ensure one state's action does not put other states at risk.

The state Department of Public Health on Monday reported 1,524 new cases of COVID-19 in Massachusetts, bringing the total number of cases to 56,462. The statewide death toll increased to 3,003 on Monday, with 104 new deaths reported. The DPH also said 8,787 new tests were reported on Monday, raising the total to 244,887 tests since the outbreak began.

The DPH said 3,892 patients were hospitalized in Massachusetts for COVID-19 as of Monday. That is an increase of 38 patients from Sunday, but still fewer than the 3,977 patients who were hospitalized on April 21.

There were 1,089 patients in intensive care units as of Monday, up 12 from Sunday.

COVID-19 cases have been reported at 308 long-term care facilities across the state, according to the DPH. As of Monday, 10,635 of the state's cases were residents or workers at those facilities and 1,698 of the deaths in the state have been reported in long-term care facilities.

Mayor Thomas Koch on Monday said there were 739 COVID-19 cases in Quincy, up from 647 on April 24. The mayor, in a video update to residents, said the increase in cases was "mainly because results have come in from some of the nursing homes that were tested about a week ago," and noted COVID-19 has been confirmed in less than 1 percent of the city's residents.

"We are one of the largest cities in the commonwealth, so we do expect our numbers to be proportionally so, but certainly far less than 1 percent of our population at this point has been confirmed cases and many of them are in nursing homes," Koch said.

Fifty-nine Quincy residents had died from COVID-19 as of Monday, according to the city's statistics, and 252 of the residents who were infected have since recovered. Those numbers are both unchanged from April 24.

In his remarks Monday, Koch said he was grateful for the leadership of Baker and Polito during the pandemic.

"Governor Baker and Lieutenant Governor Karyn Polito have been phenomenal working with us at the local level and leading the state through one of the most unprecedented times we have seen in our lifetime," Koch said. "They have been terrific leaders in providing resources to the local level including us in Quincy and other municipalities in so many ways. I am grateful for their leadership."

In addition, Koch said he has been talking with U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch on a regular basis since the pandemic began to discuss how the federal government's actions impact Quincy.

"He has been keeping me posted throughout this process," Koch said of Lynch.

"I am very grateful for him and all my colleagues locally, the City Council, School Committee, and the state legislators that are working on your behalf in Beacon Hill. Everybody is rowing in the same direction, unsure of when this will truly end, but hopefully soon. We are all working together to make sure we are doing the right thing on your behalf which is keeping you safe and healthy."

Baker last week announced schools would remain closed through the end of the academic year in June, with students learning remotely from home. The Quincy School Committee on Wednesday was set to discuss how graduations for the city's two high schools would be handled this year.

Gasoline Prices Down Four Cents, AAA Survey Shows

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are down four cents this week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA Northeast's April 27 survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $1.90 per gallon. Massachusetts's price is 13 cents above the national average of $1.77.

A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 89 cents higher at $2.79 per gallon.

"AAA forecasts that the national average will continue to decrease into next month, possibly dropping as low as $1.65," said Mary Maguire, director, Public and Legislative Affairs. "We haven't seen gas prices that cheap around the country since early in 2009."

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 97 cents, from a low of $1.42 to a high of $2.39. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area.

Remember to slow down and move over for any emergency vehicles on the side of the road.

BBB Scam Alert: US Census Scam Preys On Stimulus Confusion

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

The 2020 United States Census is happening at the same time as a global pandemic, shelter-in-place orders, and government stimulus payments.

With so much going on at once, scammers are using the unique circumstances to create confusion. Their goal is to get their hands on your personal information, which they then use to steal your identity.

How the Scam Works

You receive an unsolicited message via text, email, or a social media messenger. The message explains that in order to qualify for your stimulus payment, you need to first complete the 2020 U.S. Census. Whether or not you've completed the real census, don't click. It's a scam!

Some versions of the phony message include a link to a website "for more information." If you click the link, you could unknowingly download malware onto your computer or phone. This virus can give scammers access to your usernames, passwords, and other personal information stored on your computer.

In other cases, the link may take you to a website that looks like it was created by the official U.S. Census Bureau. However, the website is a fake. You will be asked for personal information, such as your Social Security number and bank account information. The U.S. Census Bureau does not ask for this information!

tion, such as your Social Security number and bank account information. The U.S. Census Bureau does not ask for this information!

How to Avoid Census Scams

Know how the U.S. Census Bureau communicates. The U.S. Census Bureau will only send you emails if you already signed up for them, and it will never ask you to send personal information in an email. In addition, the U.S. Census Bureau will never contact you on behalf of a political party. Only visit official websites. Valid U.S. government websites almost always end in ".gov". You can find key information about the 2020 census at 2020census.gov and information about economic stimulus payments at irs.gov/coronavirus.

Never click on links in unsolicited messages. Phishing scams direct you to websites that look official, but these sites may be infected with malware. If you don't know and trust the person who sent you the message, don't click on any links.

For More Information

Get tips from the U.S. Census Bureau about how to avoid census related fraud and scams. Learn more about the stimulus payments on IRS.gov. Read up on phishing scams at BBB.org/PhishingScam. Learn more about scams related to COVID-19 at BBB.org/Coronavirus.

If you've been a victim of a scam related to the 2020 Census or economic stimulus payments, be sure to report it at BBB.org/ScamTracker. Your report can help others to spot a scam before it's too late.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Can My Husband Get A Spousal Benefit From Me?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizen

Dear Rusty: I'm wondering if my husband can submit a "restricted application for spousal benefits only." He is 76 years old, has been receiving his benefit since 2005. His present benefit is $263.50. I am 74 years old, receiving my benefit since 2007. My present benefit is $931. Am I to understand that he could be receiving half of my amount rather than his smaller amount? Signed: Inquiring Wife

Dear Inquiring Wife: Your husband isn't eligible to file a "restricted application for spousal benefits only" because he is already collecting his own Social Security benefits and because he is past 70 years of age. But he should probably be receiving a spousal benefit from you because his benefit is so much lower than yours. From what you've written, you both claimed your Social Security benefits when you were 62 years of age. That means you both took a 25% cut in benefits from what you would have gotten at your full retirement age (FRA) of 66.

Spousal benefits are based upon FRA benefit amounts, even if you claimed benefits earlier. So, since your FRA benefit amount would have been about $1164 and your husband's FRA benefit would have been about $330, by my calculations he should now be receiving a spousal benefit of about $516 instead of his benefit of $263.50. The computation for that is: Take half of your FRA benefit amount ($582) minus your husband's FRA benefit amount ($330); the difference ($252) is added to his own current benefit ($264) to get $516 as his possible spousal benefit (note the actual numbers from SS may vary somewhat). This probably means that when you claimed your benefit two years after your husband claimed his, your husband didn't apply for his spousal benefit (and it wasn't awarded automatically by SS).

I suggest your husband contact Social Security as soon as possible and make an appointment to apply for his spousal benefits. Since he has been entitled to that benefit for some time now, he can also request 6 months of retroactive spousal benefits which they will pay in a lump-sum and adjust his monthly benefit to what he is entitled to as your spouse. There is also a possibility that, when you filed, SS failed to notify your husband he was eligible for a spouse benefit, in which case he may be able to collect his spouse benefit back to the date he became eligible. Your husband should contact Social Security directly at either 1-800-772-1213, or at your local office (find it at www.ssa.gov/locator) to make an appointment to apply for his spousal benefit from you. And, usually, this application can be accomplished over the phone.

Please note that all of the above assumes that your husband's current benefit isn't being reduced due to a non-covered pension which causes the Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP) to lower his benefit amount, and which would cause the Government Pension Offset (GPO) to severely alter, or even eliminate, his spousal benefit.

Boston Cannons To Take Part In MLL Draft May 4

Major League Lacrosse 2020 Collegiate Draft will take place on Saturday, May 4.

The draft will be announced live in primetime beginning at 8 p.m. on MLL and Boston Cannons' social media platforms.

The Boston Cannons will have the fourth pick in the draft, and have five total selections in eight rounds, barring any trades taking place prior to or during the draft. Boston traded away five 2020 draft picks, acquiring one through a trade with

New York.

Draft Order: New York, Connecticut, Philadelphia, Boston, Denver and Chesapeake

All 2020 NCAA seniors will be eligible to be selected in the draft, regardless of whether they return to collegiate play in 2021.

If a player is drafted by an MLL team and then decides to return to NCAA play, that team will retain their rights for one year. All 2020 NCAA seniors who are not drafted may voluntarily register for the MLL Player Pool if they do not return to NCAA play.

Margaret L. Mahoney, 89

Margaret L. "Peg" (Flemming) Mahoney, age 89, a longtime resident of Quincy and Braintree, died peacefully April 21 at South Shore Hospital.

Born in Boston, to the late Francis and Elizabeth (Healy) Flemming. She was a graduate of Notre Dame Academy in Roxbury. She was also a longtime summer resident of Wolfeboro, NH and a member of the Lake Wentworth Association.

Mrs. Mahoney worked at North Quincy High School as an administrator in the English Department during the 1970s. In that capacity, she initiated and led the Great Books program for grades 9-12. She was proud to be associated with this discussion-based reading program and served on their Boston Advisory Board.

She continued her career at UMass Boston as an administrator in the Office of the President. Mrs. Mahoney was proud to have earned her Bachelor's degree from UMass Boston at the age of fifty. Following graduation, she established PM Associates, an accounting firm focused on providing financial reporting for nonprofit organizations. She also worked for the Milton VNA for several years.

Mrs. Mahoney had a passion for dancing and music. Along with her late husband, she was a member of the "Belles and Beaux," a popular singing group that entertains senior groups and local nursing facilities. She loved to read and had a passion for poetry, publishing volumes of her own work. She also enjoyed browsing yard sales. Mrs. Mahoney served as a volunteer for South Shore Habitat for Humanity and served on the Quincy Mayor's Commission on Women.

Most of all, Mrs. Mahoney was devoted to her family and was especially grateful for the joy her grandchildren brought into her life.

Devoted wife of the late Paul J. Mahoney, the love of her life. Devoted mother of David P. Mahoney and his wife Kathryn of Braintree, Richard P. Mahoney and his wife Lori of Quincy, and Tara A. Healy and her husband Stephen of Haver. Loving grandmother of Meghan Baker and her husband Phillip, Caitlin and Connor Mahoney, and Michaela, Caroline, and Jenna Healy.

The last of four siblings, she was predeceased by Janet Flemming, Francis Flemming, and Albert Flemming, and is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Mahoney's family would like to recognize the compassionate care and companionship she received from All American Assisted Living in Hanson over the past four years. We have a deep amount of gratitude for the way Peg was cared for.

In light of current events, funeral services were private. Interment took place at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree. A memorial Mass and celebration of her life will be held at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to the NQHS Peg Mahoney Scholarship Fund. Checks can be mailed to North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02171.

Joseph J. Lencki, Jr., 71

Joseph J. Lencki, Jr., age 71, of Quincy died April 21 after a long illness.

He was born in Somerville to Joseph Lencki and Helen Lewandowski. Mr. Lencki grew up in East Cambridge and was a member of the St. Hedwigs Parish. He graduated from Cambridge High Latin in 1966. He attended Boston College before joining the United States Marine Corps after his brother Thomas (USMC) was wounded in action during the Vietnam War.

Mr. Lencki married his beloved wife Mary Ann in 1972. After serving his country he was appointed to the Cambridge Police Dept. in 1975. Mr. Lencki was a detective much of his distinguished 30-year career working in the Major Crimes Unit. Towards the end of his career he was assigned to the police dept's dignitary protection unit that coordinated with the Secret Service, State Dept., Harvard University and MIT. Some of the notable dignitaries Mr. Lencki helped protect were Yasser Arafat, Mother Teresa, the Dalai Lama and Vice President Gore. His final assignment before retirement was to the FBI Twin Towers Task Force investigating terror cells in the Cambridge and Boston area.

He and Mary Ann were married for 47 years and lovingly raised their four children who all went into public service. Mr. Lencki was an avid fan of the Red Sox and enjoyed talking sports, politics, and policing. He was a loving "Papa" to his six grandchildren.

He is survived by his wife Mary Ann T. Lencki (Butler) of Quincy and his children Joseph J. (Quincy Police Dept.) and Patricia Lencki of Quincy, James L. (Quincy Police Dept.) and Kahra Lencki of Marshfield, Kathryn (Braintree Public Schools) and Peter Gamache (Mass Environmental Police Dept.) of Hingham and Michael (Cambridge Fire Dept.) and Mary Lencki of Hull.

Funeral services will be held privately. A Memorial Mass and Celebration of Life will be planned for a later date.

Bank Of Canton Donates $2,000 To South Shore YMCA

Bank Contributes $6,000, Hundreds Of Bags To Food Pantries In Quincy, Canton, Randolph

Bank of Canton recently donated $2,000 and 100 reusable bags to the South Shore YMCA's Germantown Neighborhood Center Food Pantry in response to the community's growing need for food and basic necessities. The bank also donated another $4,000 and bags to food pantries in Canton and Randolph.

"Bank of Canton has been a great supporter of the South Shore YMCA for many years, and we especially value their partnership during the current crisis," said Mary Orne, vice president of development for the South Shore YMCA. "Many of our most vulnerable neighbors in Quincy are facing substantial need right now."

"At the beginning of the crisis, we were feeding 117 families, consisting of 268 individuals," said Patrick Murphy, senior executive director of the South Shore YMCA Quincy branch, who oversees the food pantry operations. "In just a few weeks, that number has grown to 239 families, equaling 761 individuals. What we're hearing from these families is that people are out of work and cannot afford food each week. For many, they are faced with decisions such as putting food on the table or keeping the lights on or paying rent. Donations like Bank of Canton's will help us as we strive to keep pace with the demand."

The Germantown Neighborhood Center Food Pantry, located at 366 Palmer St. in Quincy, is currently providing registered clients with prepackaged essential items during scheduled hours, 8:30 a.m. to noon on Wednesdays and Fridays.

The South Shore YMCA also launched a "Weekly

COVID-19 Community Support Challenge," which raises money to pay local restaurants and caterers to prepare nutritious meals for seniors. YMCA team members deliver the meals safely to hundreds of senior housing residents and at-risk seniors staying at the Quincy YMCA emergency shelter.

"Bank of Canton is proud to support local organizations like the South Shore YMCA, whose essential services are helping the City of Quincy get through this pandemic," said Stephen Costello, president and CEO of Bank of Canton. "Their dedicated staff continues to rise to the challenge with innovative ideas and programs to help support Quincy residents and families."

To donate to the YMCA's COVID-19 emergency support programs go on online at www.ssymca.org/covid-19support.

Tinker's Son Steps Up To Help Feed Shelter, Seniors, Kids

As part of the Y's weekly COVID-19 Community Support Challenge to feed shelter guests, emergency childcare kids and seniors through the help of local restaurants and community donations, the South Shore YMCA recently turned to Eat Local's Brian Houlihan, owner of restaurants Bia Bistro in Cohasset, The Parrot in Hull, Trident in Hingham, Galley in Scituate and The Tinker's Son in Norwell.

To brighten spirits for guests at the Quincy YMCA temporary emergency shelter, Chef Houlihan and his team prepared shepherd's pie for guests and staff, delivering them personally to the Y via his Hank's Clam Shack food truck.

From there, Houlihan and his Eat Local crew moved to the South Shore YMCA's two emergency childcare sites in North Quincy and Hanover, where they served mac and cheese and cookies from The Tinker's Son to children of first responders, medical workers and essential employees. The children created a giant thank you card to show their appreciation.

"We've been doing the Taste of the South Shore for years," said Houlihan. "It's a great way to get involved and support the Y, and we are thankful that the Y and community are now supporting us through this challenge."

"It's been really, really tough times for restaurants," continued Houlihan. "We've had to close restaurants and furlough some of our staff, and we hope to get them back soon. We are just trying to weather the storm until we can re-open. While we are closed, we are proud to step up and feed those in need with the Y."

On April 24, the South Shore Y team picked up 300 additional shepherd's pies and cookies prepared by The Tinker's Son and delivered them to seniors living in isolation in area senior living.

"Working with partners like The Tinker's Son is amazing," said Quincy YMCA senior executive director, Patrick Murphy. "Just to see the generosity that is out there and the willingness to help. We know that all the recipients are going to greatly appreciate the meals that are coming their way."

"It's just another addition to the food service that we are doing throughout the week," added Murphy. "Along with our Germantown Neighborhood Center food pantry and our weekly mobile food pantry, we are up to about 14,000 pounds of food serving about 1000 individuals now. We know that we are making an impact in the community, and without partners like the Tinker's Son we wouldn't be able to do this."

Since the South Shore Y had to close its doors to membership and program operation due to the COVID-19/Coronavirus pandemic in March, most of its staff has been furloughed. The remaining team of 40-50 employees remains to focus on the Y's mission-critical work to support and strengthen communities in times of crisis.

"It's truly great to be tapped into the mission of the Y and to do this kind of work," said Dan Berry, executive director of Emilson YMCA in Hanover. "Each time we go out to do these deliveries the generosity and appreciation from everyone we are serving is inspiring."

South Shore YMCA Vice

President of Development, Mary Orne, says donors are what makes it all possible. "It is because of the generosity of our members and donors that we are able to pay for these meals from our great restaurants and partners and deliver them to our seniors, to our homeless shelter, and to our childcare centers."

"You are making a difference every single day, and the good work we are doing in the community is thanks to you."

For more information on the challenge and how you can help the South Shore YMCA support our most vulnerable neighbors during this crisis, contact Mary Orne, more@ssymca.org, 781-264-9453, or visit ssymca.org/covid19support to support the challenge through a tax-deductible donation.
